Robert Bucholz takes great pleasure in expressing his gratitude, in the first place, to Sir John Sainty, KCB who, in his capacity as general editor of the Officeholders in Modern Britain series, first proposed a collaboration which resulted in two published volumes on the royal household. For those volumes, Sir John was the principal compiler of Chamber offices (much the largest household department), Robert Bucholz the compiler for the Household Below Stairs and Stables. Still, there was much cross-pollination: for example, Sir John provided the lists for the Board of Green Cloth and Equerries for the published volumes, and later contributed the first drafts of numerous important lists (chaplains, messengers, musicians and many others) for this database. While the idea for an online database originated with Bucholz, it could not have come to fruition without the scholarship, advice and support of his knightly colleague and friend.

Robert Bucholz would also like to express his gratitude to Her Majesty the Queen for permission to examine and quote from materials in the Royal Archives, Windsor and to Lady de Bellaigue and Ms. Pamela Clark, successive Registrars, and the staff of the Royal Archives for their generous assistance throughout the project. He is also grateful to the Keeper of Public Records for permission to quote from materials in the Public Record Office and to His Grace, the Duke of Beaufort for permission to examine and cite the Badminton MSS. Likewise, he gratefully acknowledges the Stanford University Press's permission to reproduce material that originally appeared in R.O. Bucholz, The Augustan Court: Queen Anne and the Decline of Court Culture (1993).

He would also like to thank Bodley's Librarian and Mr. Charles Mould, Secretary of the Bodleian Library and the staff of Duke Humphrey's Library; and William Booth, Sub Dean and David Baldwin, Serjeant of the Vestry of the Chapel Royal for their very kind assistance and warm hospitality in support of research for this project. He is likewise indebted to the staffs of the Public Record Office, London, the Staffordshire Record Office, the Huntington Library, San Marino California, the Newberry Library, Chicago, the Northwestern University Library, the Regenstein Library of the University of Chicago and the William L. Clements Library of the University of Michigan for providing access to the materials in their care. He would like to thank the staff of the Reprographic Services of the Public Record Office, in particular, for their help in fulfilling complicated requests for materials at a distance of several thousand miles. Robert Bucholz owes an especial debt to the staffs of the interlibrary loan and circulation departments of the Cudahy Memorial Library of Loyola University.

The research for this database was made possible, in part, by grants from the English-Speaking Union and Loyola University. In addition, Loyola University provided a semester leave which facilitated the project as well as the server space for its display. Robert Bucholz would also like to thank his research assistants for their valuable labors over the years, including Laura Baird, David Cholewiak, Lawrence Di Re, Catherine Hamaker, Marc Hanger, Bethany Hirt, Mark Long, David Richmond and Laura Simpson. Vital technical assistance, advice and support was provided by Andrew Barclay, Mary Boyd, Laurie Bucholz, Sebastian Edwards, Lillian Hardison, Susan Hirsch, Newton Key, John New, John Quinn, Sylvia Rdzak, Kristin Richmond, Simon Thurley, Nancy Tuchman and the staff of Loyola's Department of Research Services.

The actual posting of the database was made possible through the Herculean efforts of Professor David Dennis and the generosity of the Department of History of Loyola University.

Finally, Robert Bucholz would like to acknowledge with deep gratitude the kind hospitality on annual research trips to Britain of Mr. Michael Cook and Sir John and Lady Frances Sainty.
