LOYOLA UNIVERSITY
ROME CENTER 1986

*“Such a long time to be gone...
...Such a short time to be there”*

Think God! Think Snow! Think Rome and Paris and London and Munich! Think US! When all is said and done, the Rome Center is OUR sharing of experience: our fears of living so far away from home; our clumsy attempts to master a new language; our excitement at seeing St. Peter's and the Louvre and the Tower and the Hofbrau House; our joy skiing in the Alps. The Rome Center is taking the 990 bus with its detour through Arizona, waiting in lines that do not really exist, drinking cappuccino in a sunny piazza, gazing at fountains, visiting churches. The Rome Center is a caring faculty being there on Monday mornings even when some students were not, dedicated administrators solving problems and giving advice, lively students laughing from classroom to train station. For me the Rome Center is people, sharing studying, partying, traveling, growing, thinking Our thoughts of Munich and London and Paris and Rome, thinking of snow, and ultimately, I hope, thinking of God.

Fr. Frank Nash

Life at the Rome Center was pure fun. There was something new to do or see every moment. After I got over my initial shyness, I met some really terrific people and with them I shared some of the best times of my life.

First, we became acquainted with the city of Rome - by getting lost in it, again and again. The first sentence that we learned to speak in Italian class was "Where is the stop for bus 913?" The big orange "autobus," number 913, would take us back to our campus. If we could find that, we were okay. It was on our eternal searches for bus stops that we stumbled upon some of the treasures of the city.

We found "Giolitti's," the best icecream place in Italy, a majestic concrete staircase known as the Spanish Steps, and quite a few incredibly gorgeous old churches. In Rome, there is something to see around every corner. After classes on weekdays, we explored the city. We visited the pantheon, attended a papal audience, and gorged ourselves on pizza and pastries sold in the streets of Rome.

On weekends we packed our backpacks and hopped on trains, heading for wherever we happened to feel like going. We checked out the ruins of Pompei, shopped at the outdoor markets of Florence, and climbed the leaning tower of Pisa! We were even lucky enough to be in Munich for Oktoberfest. Those Germans sure know how to throw a party! We rode gondolas through the waters of Venice, and mopeds through the mountains on Amalfi Drive. We soaked in the sun on the island of Capri and skied the Alps in Cervinia on the border of Switzerland.

Although it may sound like we had no serious responsibilities, we did have school work to do. And so we learned Father Arimond's lesson - when to work and when to play.

Mary Eileen Kopecky

Dear Students,

Back in September, at the Mass of the Holy Spirit, I mentioned that I thought many of you had come here to Rome searching for something searching for direction, searching for fulfillment, searching for happiness, searching for your corner of the sky! Part of my homily that day was based on lyrics sung by Charlemagne's son in the Broadway show "Pippin". That song ends with:

"So many men seem destined to settle for something small,
But I won't rest until I know I have it all.
So don't ask where I'm going, just listen when I've gone,
And far away you'll hear me singing softly to the dawn.

Rivers belong where they can ramble,
Eagles belong where they can fly.
I've got to be where my spirit can run free.
Gotta find my corner of the sky!"

I think something in these thoughtful lyrics must resonate with what you have felt and thought during your time in Rome in our small community known as LURC. Far away from family and friends, you entered into a situation where your endurance was truly tested. You tested your courage to face and integrate yourselves into a foreign culture. You tested your stamina to put up with the constant frustrations of living with fewer of the amenities of life than you have been used too. You tested your judgment when faced with the constant tension pulling and pushing you between serious academic study and the urge to visit Istanbul, Budapest, and Prague all on the same long weekend! In looking back on your time at the Rome Center, you may feel you didn't score an "A" on all of these tests. But, in the long run, it's not the grade that counts so much as the mere fact that you made the free decision to test yourselves in these ways. In doing so, you have been fulfilling what I believe to be the real goal of education - an emphasis not so much on what to learn but rather on how to learn, and not on what you should be committed to but rather on the value of commitment! If you learned this much during your time in Rome, then your experience abroad should have been a valuable one no matter how many Florentine sweaters or Benetton shirts you purchased!

As you leave the Rome Center and return to your familiar surroundings, remember: (1) to give your warmest thanks and love to your parents who let you come to Rome in the first place; (2) to never lose your zest for life nor your quest to travel - the ultimate tests of your desire and ability to understand the diversity of the great peoples who make up this world; and (3) to look upon your time at LURC not as "the dream of a lifetime" but more as beginning of your initiation into the world community. You will return and I will bet on that! And, when you do, remember where it all began - here at the Rome Center, a home that will always welcome you with open arms. Arrivederci e, in futuro, benvenuto!!

We met at the dinner dance. A little tense and confused having just arrived in Roma, we weren't sure what to expect. We were surrounded by faces whose names we couldn't remember. The atmosphere at the dinner dance was so silly, we had to laugh. That made us relax, we lost our inhibitions. We came together through the common bond of corny American music and close dances with people we barely knew. The dinner dance loosened us up, we got to know those who were to become our Roman family.

*I dropped
my Italian class
oh, about three weeks ago
because I thought that in December
I thought that I'd be going home
but I've decided I've decided to keep my ass
right here in Rome*

*I got them, I got them,
I got them 2.0 blues
I got them, I got them,
I got them 2.0 blues*

*Well, I went to talk to Father Arimond
and he said "Boy,
you're a fool
and you've got to get a 2.
if you want to stay here
in my school"*

Chorus (once)

*Well, I called Mom and Dad
I called them collect on the phone
and I said "Hey How's it goin'
ya know for Christmas
I won't be home"
Well they said "Hey
that's O.K.
but son, how ya doin'
In school?"
I said "I'm sorry
I'm sorry
I got them 2.0 blues"*

LITURGIES

Although we came from very different backgrounds, our Rome experience brought us together to form a community. At LURC we partied together, we studied together, we ate pasta together, but in spite of our travelling from one European city to another we ultimately came together at the liturgy - where our sense of community really became apparent. Fr. Nash's poignant homilies, the wonderful music, and the presence of fellow students, professors, staff and friends made us realize just how much of a community we really were - united through a religious tradition which is so much a part of Loyola.

Father Arimond, Cardinal Bernardin, and an associate at the Thanksgiving dinner

Preface for Winter

*We give you thanks, O Lord, for times and seasons and now for winter nights
when stars shine coldly bright and dust is turned to diamond underfoot.*

*For winter days
when trees are stronger than icy death
and hold in blackened limbs
the promise of the resurrection.
For opposites be praised: for heat and cold,
for stillness and the snow
that sculptures every house and tree, and falls
like some great absolution to heal the wounded earth.*

*We thank you more for him whose birth we celebrate in winter
so men may know, may wildly know, that love is stronger than the coldest flesh
and mercy blankets all the land more surely than the snow.
We give you thanks for him
who makes more than children joyful and does not cheat our laughter in the end.*

WHATS AN R.A. TO DO?

So we wondered, as all you angels arrived determined to turn our little corner of heaven into hell - or so we feared. Two of us had been students here in the old days, and we could just see it coming - late nights, loud music, and lots of vino. We envisioned trips to the hospital (God forbid) and trips to foreign places (God willing). We figured we'd have our up and downs, and all we could hope for in the end was to have the friendship of some and, hopefully, the respect of many.

We had no idea how well our four years of college had prepared us for the arduous tasks ahead. Just for starters: 217 unlocked doors, 942 turned-down radios, 83 males and 92 females shagged, 42 unofficial parties broken up (one let go), 13 injuries cared for, 8 trips to the hospital, 1286 questions answered (and yes, we have all graduated and no, we don't have to take classes.) 45 books read among us, and countless checkmarks made! And you asked was this work? Did we really keep track of these statistics? What do you think?

Kidding aside, we did take our job (no snickers) seriously. Sure we liked to have a beer and party now and then, but we also had an obligation to protect the rights and privileges of that silent minority whose priorities might have been a little different from those of the masses. Being human, sometimes we might have failed in this regard, and for this please accept our apologies. In the final analysis, we hope we rated more pluses than minuses and managed to extend a helping hand whenever needed.

We would like to thank Fr. Arimond and Mr. Felice for giving us this opportunity to learn and the room to grow with all of you. And many thanks to Mrs. Barbara Angioletti for being not just the nurse, but such a wonderful mom to us and so many others. And finally, a special thank you to our ever present sounding board, travel agent, and most importantly our friend -Fr. Nash - who was there so many times when we needed a little help ourselves. MILLE GRAZIE PADRE!

We were often asked by many a student, "What do you guys do here?" If we haven't answered that query here, hopefully, we answered it with our actions. Ciao Folks and remember, one taste of Roma is never enough.

Ci Vediamo, Thom, Missy & Ken

If we learned anything here in Rome, it's that there is always something more fun to do than homework. Everytime we try to accomplish something, the effort is inevitably interrupted. It doesn't take much to convince a weak and thirsty individual to slide the book under the bed and go to Giovanni's. When it's necessary and only when it's necessary, will we roll out of bed, throw on sweats, and drag ourselves to the study room to cram for a few hours... power studying! Even then, it always seems time for a study break; and besides, cappucinos are the only way to stay awake. Bringing our books with us on the weekends seems appropriate, but there is never enough time to study, and train rides are meant for socializing, eating, and sleeping. Everything always works out though... tests come and go... we live and learn... we learn in classrooms, in libraries, in Piazza Loyola, at on-sight classes even at "Giovanni's," in Interlaken, and Budapest, and Paris and...

Rome, Italy. Well now there's a couple of words that conjure up all kinds of thoughts, memories, and questions. The first question came as I boarded the plane; "What the hell am I doing?", a question that even to this day I'm not sure I can answer. I remember thinking that there must be something wrong with my mind. I'm going to a country where half the population is a foot shorter than I am. Hard to keep a low profile. To a country where they speak a different language than I do, one that is not even close to my native tongue (which, by the way, I still often have trouble with). A country where you can be severely beaten while riding the public transportation, not by young punks like back home, but by nuns whose battle cry is "PERMESSO!". A country that does not even have a Burger King, or worse yet no rootbeer, NO ROOTBEER! It looked to be a long, long year.

It's amazing how thoughts can change. I never would have thought that I would ride 14 hours on a train for a Brot and a beer, but Oktoberfest was calling my name. Mopeds down the Amalfi coast, not quite Hells Angels, but they've never seen this coast. Trying to convince an old German woman that the U.S. was not going to blow up the world. I'm not sure I did, but when we parted she gave me a flower and wished me well. Setting out mass books in a church in Heidelberg after the pastor woke me up; a small price to pay for a good night's sleep. Speaking of church, midnight mass at St. Peter's... what more need be said? A train pulled out of the station as I sat and watched, no big deal right, trains leave all the time... but this was my train! The ski trip that almost never was. Whatta you mean too much snow?

Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Belgium, Spain, Great Britain, Ireland, so many memories from so many places. Of course there is Italy, every time I wrote my return address it was hard to believe that I actually lived here. The sights I've seen, the things I've learned, the people I've met, the radios I've turned down, the friendships I've started.

Memories, good memories. So I wasn't that tall. So that language wasn't that different. The nuns elbows weren't all that pointy. Burger King, you can have it, I'm a pasta-holic now. The long, long year has become a very short time and reality is knocking on the door. Our thoughts may differ, the memories we'll share, my question is; When can I come back?

Time? At Loyola? Time means "niente" here. Where else would you spend two hours sitting on a stone ledge and not feel guilty. Time has no real relevance because there is nowhere we have to be ... unless it's Luigi's by 11:00, or you'll be sleeping on dirty sheets, or Mario's by 12:00, or you'll have to bum a thousand lire, and, of course, Maria's by 4:00, or you'll be dressing up tomorrow.

C'mon! At Loyola, time is bizarre. We have so much time and we so generously lavish it on our friends. We spend hours in Rinaldo's B.S.ing or scouring the Welsh's Herald, we take walks, doze away siestas, make a two hour journey to mail a letter. Are we time efficient? No! Should we be? Of course not! As much time as we "waste" or as much time as we spend "wasted" it doesn't matter. Are we ever short of time? Nah! Of course, we never have time to read the chapter(s) until the night before, or to take the bus and metro to catch a train. We never have enough time to wash our underwear or update our journals. Time at Loyola - a strange concept - it's so precious - so free of duties, time is spent with special people, it goes by so quickly! We have adapted the Italian concept of time (Domani, Domani) and why not? After all, it's such a short time to be here!

You want it WHEN??? The yearbook staff is proud to report that we missed only five deadlines in a span of two months. I had never even worked on a yearbook, let alone been the editor of one. As the deadlines sailed by, and my anxiety increased, my staff members assured me that missed deadlines are a hallmark of the LURC yearbook crew. Why did I do it? A resumè filler? A substitute for neglected homework? Or maybe a sympathy getting device? All and none of these reasons. I didn't know what I was getting into! But it has been a welcome challenge, a fun project, and, yes, sometimes a pain.

Many a rainy afternoon was spent sifting through photos. Once it started getting sunny and a tan was at stake, it's amazing how quickly it was completed. Our thanks to Mr. Felice and the printer for their patience and understanding. Thanks to these people we have a yearbook that hopefully captures part of what you experienced here at the Loyola Rome Center. Fr. Nash, who generously let us clutter up his office, steal his yellow cards, and who proof-read the copy. Bunny Miller, Michelle Imhof, and Mary Jo Schuld who typed at all hours, found quotes, and lent their judgement. Thom Bond and Pete Rodriguez - honorary members of the staff - for their talent at coming up with funny captions. Ken Kay added the other captions, critiqued copy, bought munchies, and helped put it all together. Giacomo, the experienced member, outlined the organization, provided consistency, selected photos, and worked hard on the layout. Daniel McAnally, despite a few extraneous pictures of Connie, did a good job as photographer along with Les Santos, Kelan Vorback, Ken Kay, and Mark Connelly. Kelly Taylor did a great job on the cover. My thanks to people who gave their pictures or wrote copy. I apologize that not everything submitted or commissioned was included. If you don't find our captions as funny as we did at 3:00 am, find a black marker - and I'll buy ya a beer at the reunion.
