"Tell me, Muse, of that resourceful man who roamed the wide world after he had sacked the holy citadel of Troy. Of many men he saw the cities and came to know the mind.

... Begin it, goddess, at whatever point you will ..."

"Stand beside the earliest roads, ask the pathways of old which is the way to good, and walk it; thus you will find rest for your souls."

Jeremiah

Dear Student of the Rome Center, 1981—1982,

Usually I write a farewell letter, on behalf of those of us staying in Rome, to those leaving the Center. This year, though writing "the letter", I am one of those departing, and have been asked to write from this perspective.

If I were to follow a custom learned in my early Jesuit years, I would, the evening before departure, confess publicly to you and ask forgiveness for the failings I have committed in these past three years of Directorship. Admitting, but not stressing these failures, I prefer to look up, to concentrate on the good I have enjoyed here. I fix upon the consistent, even loving cooperation of my colleagues here and abroad, both staff and faculty, which I am certain outweighs my mistakes. I cherish the generous friendship and good will of so many students, a sure sign of the love which can make your world a better one than mine. I dwell on the exciting yearly challenge of the Rome Center to us all -- to be people vigorously alive to the astounding, needy, beautiful world including, but stretching far beyond, our home country. Better to realize that I am a tiny transient in a vast and glorious world than a giant in a world I have structured for myself. Though speaking so much in the first person, I hope that you, too, have enjoyed and shared in the above-mentioned joys of the Center. Let us together urge on those who are to come, to keep alive the many chances for happiness that we have found. And may we all walk hand in hand with God till He brings us all together again forever. My special gratitude to Mr. Felice for teaching and guiding me, to Fr. Vogel for advising me over these years.

Arrivederci,

John J. Kilgallen, S.J.
Time present and time past
Are both perhaps present it time future,
And time future contained in time past.
If all time is eternally present
All time is unredeemable.

What might have been is an abstraction
Remaining a perpetual possibility
Only in a world of speculation.
What might have been and what has been
Point to one end, which is always present ...

At the still point of the turning world. Neither flesh nor fleshless;
Neither from nor towards; at the still point, there the dance is,
But neither arrest nor movement. And do not call it fixity,
Where past and future are gathered. Neither movement from nor towards.

The history of the Rome Center begins in the summer of 1960. It was then that Mr. John Felice, a member of the Loyola University Theology Dept., received permission to organize and direct a six-week summer tour of Europe. The tour group was led by Mr. Felice, Fr. Francis Grollig, S.J., formerly a Chairman of the L.U. Anthropology Dept., and the late Dr. Michael Fink, acting as the tour guide and lecturer.

Due to the success of this venture, another tour was planned for the following summer. The tour, this time expanded by two weeks, was supervised and directed by Mr. Felice, Dr. Fink, and Dr. John Wozniak, former Dean of the School of Education. Accompanying this tour was the late Fr. James Meriz, S.J., former President of Loyola University of Chicago and Fr. Joseph Small, S.J., of the Political Science Dept. With the aid of Fr. Small and Dr. Wozniak, Mr. Felice examined a number of University centers abroad. Though there were study-abroad programs elsewhere in Europe, none as yet existed in Rome. After making key connections in Rome, Mr. Felice proposed a one-semester experiment of study in Rome, from February to June of 1962, to Fr. Robert Mulligan, S.J., the Academic Vice President and Dean of Faculties at L.U.

By mid-December 1961, 76 students had signed up for the “experiment” all students more than the minimum needed for a final University acceptance. So, on February 20, 1962, under the guidance of Mr. Felice and Fr. James F. Maguire, S.J., former President of Loyola University of Chicago, 92 students left Lewis Towers in Chicago for New York. After a transfer in Naples they arrived in Rome, their “new home”, which would later become the “new home” for countless others like them.
Rome Center students settled into one-half of the two buildings named CIVIS (Centro Internazionale Viaggi Istruzione Studenti), a group of dormitories originally used by athletes participating in the Olympic Games in Rome in 1960. By 1963—64 Loyola had occupied one entire building of CIVIS with a faculty of 24 and a student body of over 100. In 1965—66, due to a growing number of student applicants, Loyola Rome Center searched for a more spacious home.
Because if the growing number of young people who desired to study at the Rome Center and because of inadequate facilities to accommodate the students, a five-year lease for the Villa Tre Colli property was signed.

The main building was a villa built in 1500. A later owner constructed the second building of the Villa at the end of the 18th Century and named the street passing by it in honor of his daughter, Camilluccia.

The faculty, both part-time and full-time, now numbered 30 and students numbered over 300.

The 1971—72 school year marked the end of the five-year lease. L.U. chose not to exercise the option to buy the property under terms stipulated by the owner (the Vatican State).
In November of 1971, Dr. Richard Matre, Vice President and Dean of Faculties, signed a 5 year lease on a new property not too far from the Villa Tre Colli, on which was situated the hospital Villa Maria Teresa. An economic and enrollment "squeeze" forced a decision to leave Villa Trionfale after the 1977–78 school year.
In 1978 L.U. rented smaller quarters at Via Massimi 114-A from the Dominican Sisters of St. Catherine of Siena: this is the present and fourth campus of the Rome Center.

For the past three years the program has remained stable with regard enrollment, maintaining an average of 185 students per semester.

Located in Monte Mario, this complex is situated under one roof including: a chapel, library, dormitory, cafeteria, classrooms, administrative offices, and ... Rinaldo's.
Twenty years is a long time, but some things never change ... Just look at the bedspread, blanket, chair, bee mug, and happy student's faces. Fads may come and go, but one element remains the same.

Light

Light

The visible reminder of Invisible Light.

We thank Thee for the lights that we have kindled,
The light of the altar and of sanctuary;
Small lights of those who meditate at midnight
And lights directed through the coloured panes of windows
And light reflected from the polished stone,
The gilded carven wood, the coloured fresco.
Our gaze is submarine, our eyes look upward
And see the light that fractures through unquiet water.
We see the light but see not whence it comes.
O Light Invisible, we glorify Thee!

When in Rome contact us for any travel information or service.
We are here to help you, as we have helped in the past
thousands of your colleagues to, their full satisfaction.
Loyola University wishes to thank the Colarieti Brothers for their fine service for the past thirteen years.
La velocità nella distribuzione, la soluzione di forniture a volte impossibili, la garanzia e la qualità del prodotto, hanno fatto della Jacorossi, la nostra passata, presente e futura collaboratrice.

Seguendo l'Università nei suoi rinnovamenti e mutamenti di sede, nonostante le recenti e attuali crisi del pretolio, la Jacorossi non è mai venuta meno al suo impegno, garantendo così all'Università e ai suoi 350 componenti, continuità e serenità nei servizi.

All'Università non rimane che porgere un sentito grazie per quanto sopra, assicurando alla Jacorossi, continuazione nei rapporti che tanto hanno collaborato per la formazione del Centro romano della Loyola University.
