CLASS OF 2005
The country reeling from the world's deadliest act of terrorism and the largest single-day loss of life in American history. Two commercial planes are hijacked and flown to targets in New York City. Another plane destroys a portion of the Pentagon and a fourth plane crashes into a field near Shanksville, PA - the plane's intended target thought to be Washington DC. Fatalities approach 2,000 and the nation is irrevocably scaled. The horrific events unfold on the big screen in Tobin Hall. A huge outpouring of American patriotism and unity follows. God bless America.

Dumbledore, Voldemort and Hagrid become household names as Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone breaks box office records worldwide.

History of Stritch

In 1870, Reverend Arnold Damen founded St. Ignatius College, a liberal arts college of University Chicago and was relocated to what is now its Lakeshore Campus.

At that time, Chicago boasted several independent medical colleges. Reliance Medical College joined the affiliation in 1910, Bennett and 1915, all of the schools became Loyola University School of Medicine.

In 1917, the Chicago College of Medicine and Surgery was on South Wolcott, just adjacent to Cook County Hospital. Creation of Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association

It wasn't until the 1940's that Loyola was able to flourish fundraising dinner for the school. This became a major source of approval for the school to be renamed as the Stritch School of Medicine.

As the school grew, a larger facility was desperately needed, and plans for the construction of a 60-acre parcel of land in Maywood, Illinois, next to the Hines Veterans 1969 and the 504-bed Foster McGaw teaching hospital, named after a generous financial benefactor began admitting patients on May 21st of the same year.

In 1981, the Mulusky Outpatient Center was constructed to serve many administrative offices at Loyola.

In 1986, the 8-story Russo Surgical Pavilion was added to the complex. In the same year, the addition of the LifeStar Helicopter Emergency Medical System and the completion of a new school and teaching hospital began in 1965. The buildings were to be run by an annual financial support for Loyola for many years. On April 15, 1948, the Board of Trustees of a new medical school opened its doors on January 21st. The new medical school opened its doors on January 21st, 1991.

In 1994, a cancer center was built to serve the particular patient population. The center of care in the facility.

Again, the school outgrew its accommodations, and in July 1997, the current Stritch building is located on the south end of the campus at this time.

The most recent addition to Loyola is the Outpatient Center located on the south east of including an ambulatory surgery facility, a brand new MRI machine, and room for all of the specialty clinics.

Loyola University Health System currently is a teaching tertiary care facility with 538 licensed beds. Loyola has needs of the community which it serves.

Loyola was designated a Level 1 trauma center. This was supplemented of the Emergency Care Facility in 1991.

School of Medicine opened its doors to the class of 2001.

The Center for Health and Fitness was also added to Loyola's campus. It opened in late 2003.

It continues to be nationally recognized for its excellence in many different fields. Cardinal Stritch would be proud that dream: to provide a major Catholic medical center dedicated to meeting the ever-changing needs of the community which it serves.

Oh great digital goddess,
Where have you gone?
My computer's on fire.
How will I play my pirated song?

We long for your giant cup of pop
On your little luggage cart.
Who on this planet
Will get the server to start?

You were number one with storage devices
Whether cd, floppy, or Zip,
You were always there
When my disk would slip.

Visiting your "eclectic" office
Proved such a treat.
Now I have trouble
Pushing control-alt-delete.

On Halloween a pointed black hat
Crowned your long dark hair,
And striped orange socks
Gave even Bill Gates a scare.

One thing is for sure:
God's pearly Gateway PC
Will always and forever
Remain virus free.

We miss you Diane Lona-Roundtree——
XOXO—Dr. D. and the entire Stritch family.

Inside of this building, we have studied, we’ve played, made lifelong friends, eaten, and sometimes even slept. The stories of our lives have played out within the walls of Stritch...

... as much as we love Maywood, we have enjoyed broadening our horizons through externships and vacations across the United States and beyond.

desperately needed meal supplies.

established hospitals while others traveled out to communities and provided treatment as well as education and support. Although there were a few mishaps on our trips, including attacks by wild dogs, Dengue and malaria-carrying mosquitos, blood-borne pathogen exposures, and some undetermined GI bugs, we hung in there for the good of the people we had the chance to serve. For many of us, ISI was truly a life-altering experience that we will carry with us forever.

Thanks to Ministry for this opportunity!

INTERNATIONAL SERVICE IMMERSION TRIPS

In the summer of 2002, 72 of us embarked on once-in-a-lifetime journeys. With the support of University Ministry, we were given the opportunity to participate in the International Service Immersion program. Our classes showed great enthusiasm and record numbers of students volunteered their time and efforts. Planning began well in advance of the actual trips. We spent all winter and spring calling hundreds of companies and benefactors for contributions to our annual auction. The theme of our auction was "Do You Believe in Magic?"
The stairwell was transformed into a giant magician’s hat and Dean Lambesis, the night’s master of ceremonies, stole the show dressed up as a white rabbit! Thanks to the many generous contributors, we raised over $70,000... it truly was a magical night!

Over the summer, students traveled to Belize, Guatemala, Haiti, Ecuador, and Honduras. Each group of students was accompanied by a talented physician and together we provided medical care, monetary donations, and desperately needed medical supplies. Some groups worked in established hospitals while others traveled out to small village communities and provided treatment as well as education and support. Although there were a few mishaps on our trips, including attacks by wild dogs, Dengue and malaria-carrying mosquitos, blood-borne pathogen exposures, and some undetermined GI bugs, we hung in there for the good of the people we had the chance to serve. For many of us, ISI was truly a life-altering experience that we will carry with us forever.

talent for treatment

Some of our classmates chose to focus on the AIDS epidemic in Africa as a worthy fund-raising cause. During AIDS-week, we are educated about the epidemic and its widespread effects with lecturers and posters. The week culminates in an annual talent show showcasing our many gifts and abilities. The money raised from the show is donated to orphanages in Africa that assist children affected by HIV and AIDS.

Special Friends

A brain child of the American Cancer Society, Special Friends is a program in which a medical student is paired up with a child with cancer. Big Special Friends act as friends and mentors to their Little Special Friends, both while in the hospital receiving treatment and in times of remission. We planned trips to bowling alleys, Odyssey Fun World, and several picnic outings.

Community Health

Community Health is a program that was supported and staffed by a very dedicated team of our classmates. This free clinic, located in an underserved Chicago neighborhood provides medical care to patients at no cost. Many students volunteered their services weekly.

Class roles were established early on in the year:
Danielle, the ever-present photographer;
Paul, always good for a laugh;
Brian, entertaining us with his dj-ing skills.

Our first year began with Cell Biology which, as you can see, offered plenty of time to get to know each other outside of school. We moved on to Gross Anatomy, learning not only the human body but also just how long you could wear the same clothes and still have friends speak to you. A little less time for going out, but we still made the effort! After getting back from Christmas break, we were all ready to tackle Physiology and before we knew it, we were taking classes in Immunology as well. And how could we forget the whole year, with interviewing basics, role playing, and our introduction to standardized patients? Those were the days of 4 hours of lecture a day, 4 hours of working out at the gym, and maybe 4 hours of studying (if a test was coming). Monday tests always meant a good post-test party and a low attendance at Tuesday morning lectures.

The Forest Park bars (Healy’s, Doc Ryan’s, and Molly Malone’s) offered almost as much education as did Tobin Hall during first year.

Cory and Marcia represent one of the many couples whose relationship (that has since led to marriage) began during our first year at Stritch.
Our crisp white coats from the “White Coat Ceremony” quickly gave way to the dingy, disgusting whites of the Anatomy Lab.

Clearly, IPM was ALWAYS about the learning experience.

Yet another party at the infamous 411 Beloit Street.
After a summer of rest, research, and immersion trips, we began a much busier year upstairs in Laclede Hall. Beginning with Neuroscience and Pharmacology, we experienced a whole new level of intensity in our study habits. Building on what we learned the year prior, we began to study about how disease processes affect the human body in Pathology. IPM continued our training in Physical Diagnosis. And of course, the year ended with everyone's favorite Development of the Human Body. We still managed to make time for social outings with each other, whether it be at formals or out on the town.
We definitely both worked hard and played hard. As we continued our education toward becoming doctors, we tried our hardest not to lose our identities outside the classroom.

For some of us, that meant maintaining old friendships and solidifying new relationships. For others, it meant becoming a part of a much more national organization.

Third Year

"Maybe next they'll let me put in the Foley!"
Third year allowed us to finally start "paving our hands wet" with real patient care. Through the sleepless nights of OB, the endless 14-hour days of Surgery, the hard work of Medicine, the influenza of Peds, and the joys of laid back Psych and Family, we continued to maintain our reputation as the class who likes to socialize.

We may not have been together all in one place often, but we could always count on monthly IPM classes to reconnect!

ICU book for our last real rotation

"For $30,000 you would think Dr. Simpson could remember I like THREE sugars in my coffee."
“We also treat the human spirit.” Regardless of where we will all go for residency, the verse we saw each day in the atrium will remind us that caring for the patient is as important as treating the disease.

For some, wedding receptions and casual dinners replaced the Forest Park Bars of our first year. Don’t laugh...in a few short months you’ll be doing this to real patients, not just the Anesthesia dummy!

As fourth year began, we saw even less of each other as many spent time on externships during the summer and fall months. Those around Loyola did their best to get the requirements of Neurology, a Wards Sub-internship, and an ICU Sub-intern out of the way so that we could move on to serious learning in demanding electives such as Cardiographics, Allergy & Immunology, and pretty much anything at the VA. Some time had to be spent studying for Step II, both the computer based test and the new, very popular “clin skills” standardized patient test, but we all survived another round of boards. Everyone’s favorite two months of fourth year, “discretionary time,” was spent by some interviewing for their future residencies, by others vacationing with friends, and by a few getting married and going on honeymoons. Regardless of how it was spent, it was nice to have some time to ourselves!
Remember When...

...we stood in line for hours during orientation week and took what seemed like a hundred pictures (here they are!)?

...three hours of lecture seemed like a long day?

...Dr. Webber taught us that the kidney stole our water?

...we still had a summer break?

...Dr. Neafsey taught us that a cat without an amygdala will hump a chicken?

...Dr. Davis would keep the lecture hall wide awake with "10 seconds of humor?"

...we learned (again and again) why Dr. Lee "makes the big bucks?"

...one of us halted lecture when he woke up from a dream with an animal-like moan?

...we studied 12-hours a day for a month solid before Step I?

...we woke up at 3:30am to pre-round on our surgery patients?

...we woke up at 9:00am to "pre-round" on our psych patients?

...Dr. Michelfelder told us to enjoy Chicago because, after all, it was our Family Medicine rotation?

...you would wake-up 3 inches from one of your classmates in our luxurious call rooms?

...we did more traveling in one month of interviews than we had in the previous 4 years combined?

...we got to spend $1000 to talk to standardized patients for a whole day during the brand new Step II "Clin Skills" exam?

...we could go to the gym again?

...we re-checked our rank lists a dozen times (just to make sure they hadn't changed since the day before)?

...St. Patrick's Day 2005 was the day we learned where we matched?

...we FINALLY finished school...after the 20th grade?

THE DEPARTMENT OF FAMILY MEDICINE WISHES TO CONGRATULATE THE CLASS OF 2005!
Thank You!!!

To the Class of 2005:

We hope you enjoy your yearbook! We worked hard to put together a book that will always remind us of our four years at Stritch. In the time between Orientation and Disorientation, we've been through a lot together. We've ordered Mama-Thai for late-night dinners in the atrium while studying, burned our post-test angst in probably a few too many beers, run to get charts for each other on surgery rounds, and maybe even covered for each other while we were missing days for "second-looks" at residency programs. We all made it through these four years because we were a class that helped one another. We may have had a reputation for being the ones that had "a little too much fun", but we've all shown that we know how to maintain a balance between working hard and playing hard. We are so proud of our class, and we wish for everyone that they may take the lessons learned at Stritch, both within its walls and out, on to our residencies, careers, and lives. Never forget to treat the human spirit.

Best of luck and many blessings.

Todd and Carolyn

Cheers to you, Doctors!

Special thanks to:

Mike Lambesis Angie Ingraham
Dee Harris Janet Pan
Jennifer Curto Adriana Perillo
Amy Hagen Jacyln Mansoquin

Of course... to all of our classmates, who created the memories that fill this book.
