Rome Center Yearbook 1974
How it started...

In the summer of 1960 Father Robert Mulligan, S.J., Academic Vice President and Dean of Faculties at Loyola University of Chicago, gave permission to John Felice, a member of Loyola's Theology Department, to organize and direct a six week summer tour of Europe. Mr. Felice and Father Francis Grellig, S.J., former chairman of the Anthropology Department at Loyola, led the group with Dr. Michael Fink as guide and lecturer.

The following summer Mr. Felice repeated and extended the tour to eight weeks. The tour included a course offered by Dr. Fink and Dr. Wozniak (former Dean of Loyola's School of Education) in Comparative Education. Accompanying this tour were Father James Mertz, S.J., former Classics Professor at Loyola, and Father Joseph Small, S.J., a member of Loyola's Political Science Department.

During this summer Mr. Felice examined a number of University centers abroad with Father Small and Dr. Wozniak. Though there were study programs abroad elsewhere, none existed in Rome. After making key connections in Rome, Mr. Felice proposed to Father Mulligan in September, 1961, a one-semester experiment of study-abroad in Rome, from February to June, 1962. By mid-December of 1961 Mr. Felice had 76 willing and qualified students, well beyond the minimum the University thought necessary for granting final permission. By February 20, 1962, the number of students interested had swelled to 92. On that day they boarded a Greyhound bus from Loyola's downtown campus to New York City. From there they sailed to Naples, and drove from Naples to Rome. Thus Loyola's Rome Center for the Liberal Arts was born.

With exciting and enthusiastic appraisals of the program's merits reaching the states, the University received 200 applications for the following year. One hundred students were accepted for one year, fifty for either Spring of Fall. By 1963 Loyola had taken over one entire building as dormitory and classroom facilities on the site where the 1960 Olympic games were held.

On December 2nd, 1963 Loyola University, by vote of its board of directors in Chicago, conferred honorary “Doctor of Law” degrees upon the then President of Italy, the Honorable Antonio Segni, and the former President of Italy, Senator Giovanni Gronchi. These degree conferred signified the University’s, and thus the Center’s growing position of prestige and acceptance within Italian society, a position maintained today.

By 1966, the increasing number of people applying to the program necessitated a move from the present facilities, and so, in May of that year Mr. Felice signed a lease for Villa Tre Colli, a Vatican property. The main structure was a building constructed in 1500 with the property around it comprising 25 acres of wooded area on which was later constructed a student union building, tennis courts and a basketball court.

In 1972 the program was forced to move again, and so, found its new home not far from the Villa Tre Colli, on the property of the hospital Villa Maria Teresa. 1972 also marked the donation of the Milford library with over 40,000 volumes.

In 1978, economic and enrollment factors forced a decision to leave Villa Maria Teresa and rent smaller quarters at Via Massimi from the Dominican Sisters of St. Catherine of Siena, the present and fourth campus of Rome Center. It accommodates 210 students.

FORWARD

If you like birthdays, you probably like universities. Universities can manage, because of the way they evolve, to have several birthdays in one year. At our recent Founders Day celebrations, we observed the university's 116th birthday. The Debating Society, Loyola's oldest extra-curricular activity, is 111 this year. The Honors Program is 50. And the Rome Center is XXV.

Each one of our colleges and programs and departments is special, but it might well be said that the Rome Center is very special! Why do I say this? Because I hear it from students and alumni and parents. What do I hear? Let me tell you.

The Rome Center has a distinctive spirit, a spirit of broadening intellectual inquiry and a spirit of comradeship, of new and long-lasting friendships-some of which take the form of marriages. This spirit arises from many experiences. Four of the most influential, I believe, are the introduction to a new world, the old world; the experience of travel; taking classes on site; and Rome Center faculty and staff.

For most of our students the trip to Italy is their first one outside the United States. Seeing the Colosseum and St. Peter's brings to the forefront of their consciousness an international stimulation that had heretofore existed only as an intellectual exercise. It's good to be there.

Travel broadens people, develops flexibility and linguistic skills, shows travelers how big and beautiful—and sometimes saddening—the world is and how it's there for the curious and the adventurous. Having classes that meet in the Forum, on the Campidoglio, in the Villa Borghese or the Vatican Museum is for many students a new and enriching experience. Photographs and reproductions are seen for what they are: attempts to capture the original.

Rome Center faculty and staff have profoundly influenced Rome Center students over the past twenty-five years. A selective list unfortunately omits important names, and for that reason making such a list is risky. Let me take that risk and note, without comment, several names: Felmè, Fink, Clayes, Jarrott, Hogan, Szemler, Arimond, Addis, Kilgallen, Palesa, Dillon, Casey, Nicholson.

These experiences, as I understand it, form the Rome Center spirit. Those of my readers who have studied at Loyola's Rome Center will easily be able to illustrate it further. It's a spirit we are grateful for, a spirit we delight in celebrating on our 25th birthday.

Il Signore sia con voi.

THE 25th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATIONS IN ROME

A Nobel Prize winner, a recipient of Japan's highest honor, the author of a currently popular book that spawned a movie, and one of Italy's top education professionals were granted honorary degrees at the Rome Center's special convocation on Feb. 27, 1987 at the Cavalieri Hilton in Rome.

Joseph Pittau, S.J., received an honorary doctor of law degree.

Father Pittau, an Italian Jesuit and scholar, has been involved in spreading the Jesuit intellectual tradition to Japanese students.

Dr. Rita Levi-Montalcini, the 1986 cosharer of the Nobel Prize in Medicine/Physiology, received an honorary doctor of science degree.
Adriano Bausola received an honorary doctor of laws degree. Bausola is president of the only lay Catholic university in Italy, the University Cattolica Del Sacro Cuore (Milan) and is an administrator for the Gemelli Medical School of Rome.

"What better way to honor the Rome Center's 25th Anniversary than by presenting to the students and faculty, both in Chicago and Rome, eminent citizens of our host country."

Umberto Eco, a professor of semiotics, noted journalist, and bestselling author, was awarded an honorary doctor of human letters degree.

Special recognition was given to John Felice an founder, educator, and animator of the Rome Center for the past 25 years.

The Carabinieri Band Participating in the 25th Anniversary Celebration
In honor of the 25th Anniversary, the President of Italy, Dr. Francesco Cossiga received the Administration, Faculty and students of Loyola University and the Rome Center at the Quirinal Palace.

In the private study of Dr. Cossiga

Dear Students,

Those who can recall my opening talk during the orientation days in August and January might remember what some have termed my philosophy of how young people should approach their education and, for that matter, life in general — “work hard and play hard but just remember when you should be doing which!” This maxim has served me well during my life and I hope you have been able to incorporate it into your lives, too, during your time at the Rome Center. For, with the vast opportunities for travel, the frequent visits to fiddlers elbow, and worshipping at the high altar of the almighty Eurail Pass, you have had to weigh these priorities with those of attending class and taking seriously your academic responsibilities. If, during the past semester or year, you began to come to grips with the delicate balancing of these priorities (along with your finances), then your experience abroad should have been a valuable one no matter how many Florentine sweaters of Benetton shirts you purchased!

It has been my privilege these past eight months to have shared in your youth, something Robert Kennedy so eloquently described as “not a time of life but rather a state of mind, a temper of the will, a quality of imagination, a predominance of courage over timidity, of the appetite for adventure over the love of ease.” Never forget that the grandeur of youth is your mind but the glory of youth is your spirit. It is a grand thing that your mind can and must seek knowledge and truth, but it is glorious and a wonder that your spirit can and must seek beauty and justice. By your mind you know and reason; but by your spirit or soul you love and serve others. This has been my fundamental belief supporting the many happy years I have been privileged to work with young people — and this year has been no exception!

As you leave the Rome Center and return to your to your families and familiar surroundings, remember — (1) to give your warmest thanks and love to your parents who let you come to Rome in the first place; (2) to never lose your zest for life nor your quest to travel: the ultimate tests of your desire and ability to understand the diversity of the great peoples who make up this world; and (3) to look upon your time at Lure not as “the dream of a lifetime” but more as a beginning of your initiation into the world community. You will return and I will bet on that! And, when you do, remember where it all began — here at the Rome Center, a home that will always welcome you with open arms. Arrivederci e, in futuro, benvenuto!!
