CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

The changes in special education in the United States in the last quarter century are significant, both in their scope and in their nature. Theories of special education, types of classrooms in use, methods for teaching children with special needs, have all changed dramatically. Among the most important changes is the importance of special education itself. Some of this new importance comes from the fact that there are so many more people involved in the field, and so many more children receiving the services. Another part of this difference, if not most of this difference, stems from developments in the law related to special education. The evolution of this law has come about over the last century, gradually at first, and then over the last quarter-century, slowly at first, and then extremely rapidly.

Initially in this country, only those with considerable means were able to educate their children, always at great expense to the family, and frequently at great distances from home. It was at the end of the eighteenth century that schools began to be available locally for children to attend, paid for with public funds. Beginning in 1817 with the founding of the American School for the Deaf (Nazzaro), schools were opened for the first time for people with handicaps, previously excluded from any form of schooling. In the beginning, these schools were residential schools, each teaching children with a single handicap. Children from all over the country would travel great distances to enroll in these schools, and since they were few in number, only a very few lucky children could be served by them. Some schools like this survive to this day, such as the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis, the Gallaudet College for deaf undergraduates, and the Hadley School for the Blind. Each school of this type serves one segment of the handicapped population, and, while the education is excellent, there is an unfortunate lack of reality in the isolated circumstances in which the children are trained. It took a long time for educators to realize that there was something to be gained, both for the handicapped and the "normal" children in the school, when children with handicaps are placed in the same school as those without.

This was certainly not the case a century ago. In 1893, the Wisconsin Supreme Court (Beattie, 1893) allowed a school system to expel a handicapped child based solely on the testimony that her appearance was upsetting to the other children and to the teacher! The change from this position to the present one did not come about directly in the area of special education (Children's Defense Fund, pp.3-4.) True, there has been a gradual increase in the numbers of school systems offering special education facilities and classes for handicapped children (Cottle, pp.51 ff), with a marked increase since World War II(Silberman, p.159), but the great changes came about as a result of the civil rights laws which extended the rights of children to receive an education. The first major cases were those based on the race of the child(Brown,1954). Once the racial cases had been decided, and it was clear that the courts would support a finding that children were entitled to an education as a right, handicapped children and their parents began to insist that they had the same rights, and the courts agreed with them (PARC, 1971; Mills, 1971).

After several court cases decided in the favor of the handicapped children and their parents, the right to education of handicapped children was codified by the U.S. Congress (see Chapters II, III, and IV). The earlier acts which provided education and training of handicapped individuals, such as the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968, the Economic Opportunities Act of 1972 (Headstart), the Higher Education Amendments of 1972, The Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 1974, all have been superseded in one way or another by two major acts, The Rehabilitation Act of 1974 (particularly Section 504) and The Education of All Handicapped Children Act (P.L. 94-142).

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1974 is broader in scope than P.L. 94-142. It prohibits discrimination against an "otherwise qualified individual" on the basis of handicap in a number of areas, of which education is only one. P.L. 94-142, on the other hand, is a bill limited to education, and provides that funding shall be limited to school districts which comply with the Act. For those districts which choose to forego funds and not comply, if they are part of the state school system which receives funds, then that state system has the responsibility for monitoring compliance within the district. If the district is not providing services to its handicapped children, then the state must provide it or lose its funding.
All this is based on an idea of constitutional due process. The due process clause of the fifth and fourteenth amendments to the Constitution of the United States provide that no one may be deprived of "property" without due process of law and courts have held that children have a "property" right to education (see Chapter II). Additionally, the courts have held that children are entitled to the "equal protection of the laws" guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment when it comes to applying to school or being placed in a classroom in which they are able to learn.

The due process to which children are entitled varies by the situation involved. Due process is not a constant "thing" (Bartholomew) but varies greatly according to the situation. There are two "kinds" of due process, substantive and procedural. Substantive due process refers to a situation in which a person is deprived of something to which he has a right, in this case, a "free appropriate public education." Procedural due process refers to the acceptable procedure used in any given situation to provide an individual with notice of an action to be taken and a hearing in which he can contest it. If procedural due process is fairly given, then a person can be deprived of something in which he has a property right, and it is not a violation of his rights. All of the cases which have arisen in special education involve, in one form or another, these issues:

1. Was the child given the "equal protection of the laws", i.e., was he given the same chance to receive a free, appropriate public education as every other child in his district?
2. Was he deprived of his (property)right by being denied either a free education or one appropriate for him?

3. If he was deprived of something, was it done in such a way as to protect his rights?

This paper is a history of the evolution of the rules above and the procedures for following them which have been established by case law and by statute. The cases which led to these rules were a fascinating mix of discipline and racial segregation cases, and not until recently did handicapped children appear in the courtroom. Since they have, however, the changes in the law have been dramatic. Parents, teachers, administrators, and other school personnel need to understand the evolution of the law which led to the current "due process" rules, because only by understanding how the laws got to be the way they are is it possible to understand the laws themselves well enough to assure compliance within a school district. For this reason, this paper examines the first cases involving due process in schools, the early cases involving handicapped children, and then the current laws providing due process procedural protections for handicapped children.
CHAPTER II

THE HISTORY OF "DUE PROCESS" IN EDUCATION IN GENERAL

The term "due process of law" is defined by Black's Law Dictionary as:

Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. 3 Story, Const. 264, 66. 'Due process of law in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs.' Cooley, Const. Lim. 44.

It is clear from this that the exact form which "due process" may take will vary according to the circumstances.

"Due process of law" did not originate with the American colonies, but came to us from the English Magna Carta. It was originally termed the "law of the land" in the Magna Carta, referring to the common law and the statues then existing in England, and was incorporated along with the rest of the body of English common law into our Constitution, and into our common law. It is well-settled that the term is difficult to define precisely (12 Am. Jur., Constitutional Law, Sections 567-575) but is generally held to include all the steps essential to deprive a person of life, liberty or property...(Jenkins, 689).

The elements essential to due process are notice, a hearing, and an opportunity to defend (Snyder). It has also been held that a requirement of due process is that the law operates equally to all persons affected by it (Off). It was originally a protection from arbitrary action by the Crown (12 Am. Jur., Constitutional Law, Section 568), and continues to be a protection from arbitrary action by a governmental agency (Nebbia), and it is in this sense that it is applied to the cases involving children in schools. It is the evolution of this protection for children, first from racial discrimination and then from discrimination on the basis of handicap, that has brought the educational laws of this country to where they are now.

The cases which led to the establishment of requirements for "due process" safeguards in special education are based on earlier cases which were concerned with other areas of children's rights. The first of these are the cases which established education as a constitutionally protected civil right. These cases were primarily concerned with racial segregation in the schools. The second group of cases were those concerned with discipline of students, and the standards to be met by the school before a student could be suspended or expelled. As these two groups of cases developed, the courts set very clear standards which had to be met before a student could be deprived of the right to attend classes. As the rules evolved, it became clear that what had been a privilege a century earlier had become a right, and that the courts would not allow that right to be abridged.

The changes came about rapidly, largely the result of changes in the society as well as in the makeup of the legislatures and courts. As recently as 1919, courts had actually gone on record as supporting the exclusion of a handicapped youngster from the local public school, on the theory that the child's presence would be disturbing to both the teacher and the other students (Beattie, 1919). At that time, there was absolutely no thought that the child involved was being deprived of the right to an education, nor was there any suggestion made that there should be a provision for any form of alternative placement. By 1974, it was estimated that two million children in the United States were excluded from school for various reasons (Cottle, 1974). The most common reasons for exclusion were handicapping conditions and discipline problems. As the courts began to look at education as a right rather than as a privilege, they began to require that the schools observe "due process" before students could be excluded.

The most famous of all the civil rights cases was one involving segregated schools, Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, Kansas. Brown was actually a consolidation of four cases, all heard in Federal District Courts in different parts of the United States, and all appealed to the Supreme Court as involving a matter of Constitutional rights. The plaintiffs were school children ("minors of the Negro race") who were attending segregated schools in their home school districts. Until the time of Brown, segregated schools were not considered to be illegal so long as the facilities were judged to be "equal". This was based on the "separate but equal" doctrine which had been adopted by the Supreme Court in 1896 in the case of Plessy v. Ferguson (Plessy, 1896) which involved not education, but transportation.

Between Plessy and Brown, the Court had had several cases before it in which it was asked to decide whether segregated schools were constitutional, but the other cases had been settled without so squarely addressing the issue as was done in Brown. In the first of the several cases along this line, a Negro citizen of Missouri was rejected by the state's law school when he applied for admission, but was offered tuition so that he could attend law school in another state. This was done in accord with the state law at the time. He sued in state courts to be allowed to be admitted to the state school.
The state courts refused to rule in his favor, and he appealed to the Supreme Court. In that case, the Court ordered that he be admitted, saying that the issue was not that he could be educated by other states, but that he should be educated by his own state on a basis equal to white students within that state (Missouri ex. rel. Gaines
v. Canada, 1938). In the case next brought before the Supreme Court, the justices once again failed to address the issue of the constitutionality of applying Plessy to education, while still deciding the case in favor of the plaintiff (Sipuel, 1948).

In 1950, the Court was presented with two cases which presented different aspects of the same issue. That issue was the limitation of the state's power to discriminate on a racial basis as a result of the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, Sweatt v. Painter (Sweatt, 1950) and McLaurin v. Oklahoma State Regents (McLaurin, 1950). In the first of these two cases, Sweatt, the plaintiff had applied for admission to the Law School of the University of Texas and his application had been denied because he was a Negro. The Court did not deal directly with the applicability of the Plessy "separate but equal" doctrine to public education, but instead, skirted the issue by deciding that the plaintiff had not in fact been offered "equal" facilities.

In Sweatt, the Negro plaintiff had been offered admission to the law school at the Texas State University for Negroes. The law school there was in the process of being started at that time. Almost none of the books had arrived for the library. The faculty consisted of four members of the faculty from the University of Texas Law School who were essentially "on loan" to the new law school. The new school was not accredited. By contrast, the law school at the University of Texas was fully accredited, had a library with over 65,000 volumes, and a full-time faculty of sixteen, plus some part-time faculty. The Court commented quite properly that it was considered among the nation's ranking law schools.

In addition, the Court considered the intangibles that were involved such as the reputation of the faculty and administration, the prestige of the alumni, and the fact that many of the contacts which are so necessary to the practice of law originate during the law school years. Given all these factors, the Court held that the opportunity to attend the Negro law school did not constitute an equal educational opportunity for the plaintiff. Thus, while holding that the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause required that the plaintiff be admitted to the University of Texas Law School, the Court did not yet go so far as to re-examine Plessy in terms of the Fourteenth Amendment and racial segregation in the schools, which the plaintiff had urged, but the Court was moving in that direction. In McLaurin, a Negro doctoral student in Education was allowed by Oklahoma statute to take courses in the white institutions whenever there was not a comparable class available to him at the Negro institution but, (also by statute) the instruction could only be offered on a "segregated basis". This meant that the plaintiff had to sit at a "Negroes only" table in the cafeteria, and had a seat in a row of desks reserved, also, only for Negroes. There had also been a restriction on his library privileges, in that he had been forbidden to use a desk in the library, but that restriction had been removed after he had filed the suit, but prior to the hearing by the Supreme Court. The Court, which considered this case at the same time as it considered Sweatt, held that it was not an equal education to separate a doctoral student in this manner, and that not only he but also his future students would be adversely affected if this were allowed to continue. Again, they had succeeded in finding that the education being offered was not equal, but had not gone so far as to determine that "separate but equal" could not apply to education. That point was finally reached in Brown.

In Brown, all the school districts involved had gone to great lengths to be sure that all the facilities had been equalized. Salaries of teachers, buildings, textbooks, curricula, and credentials of teachers had been carefully considered and were well-balanced between the Negro and white schools in each district. Thus, as the Court observed, the "tangibles" were equal (Brown, 1954, at 485).

For the first time, the Court was forced to address the issue of the extension of Plessy to public education squarely. The Court first took note of the fact that by that time, education had become "perhaps the most important function of state and local governments." The court stated:

Compulsory school attendance laws and the great expenditures for education both demonstrate our recognition of the importance of education to our democratic society. It is required in the performance of our most basic public responsibilities, even service in the armed forces. It is the very foundation of good citizenship. Today it is a principal instrument in awakening the child to cultural values, in preparing him for later professional training, and in helping him to adjust normally to his environment. In these days, it is doubtful that any child may reasonably be expected to succeed in life if he is denied the opportunity of an education. Such an opportunity, where the state has undertaken to provide it, must be made available to all on equal terms.

Then, relying heavily on psychological and sociological evidence presented at trial, the Court held that education had become a right and not a privilege, and that it therefore was a requirement of the Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection Clause that children be given equal educational opportunity. This was the first time that it had been made clear that the Supreme Court viewed education as constitutionally protected.

In a companion decision rendered on the same day, the Court held that the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment applied to education (Bolling, 1954). Given these two cases, the way was beginning to be established for parents of handicapped youngsters to demand that their children, too, had a right to education.

The other group of cases that laid the way for the present requirements for due process for children requiring special education was the group of cases involving discipline of students. The most often-cited of these, and the one that continues to have an impact even in special education, is Goss v. Lopez (1975). In this case, several high school students in Columbus, Ohio had been suspended from their schools as a disciplinary measure. They sued the school district, charging that they had been deprived of their Fourteenth Amendment rights by being suspended without a hearing either prior to the suspension, or immediately following the suspension. The district court agreed with the students and ordered the school district to reinstate each of them and to expunge their records of any mention of the incidents.

The Ohio School Code at the time allowed a principal to expel a student or to suspend him for up to ten days for disciplinary reasons. The student's parents had to be notified within twenty-four hours of the action taken and the reasons for it. For a student who was expelled, the Code provided for a hearing at the request of either the child or his parents. They could appeal the school's decision to the Board of Education, and were entitled to a hearing at a board meeting. The Board could reinstate the child after the hearing, if the members of the Board felt that was the appropriate action.

For the children who were suspended, there was no right to either a hearing or an appeal provided by the Code. The Columbus School District had not published any regulations providing procedures for either a hearing or an appeal in the cases of students who were suspended for disciplinary reasons. The nine named plaintiffs who brought the class action suit in Goss were all children who had been suspended, most of them for a ten-day period as the result of their participation in a protest or other demonstration.
The District Court held that the school district had an obligation to provide students with written procedures to be followed for disciplinary actions, which procedures should provide notice and a hearing to all students. The court held that case law at the time would:

1. allow immediate removal of a student whose conduct disrupts the academic atmosphere of the school, endangers fellow students, teachers, or school officials, or damage property.

2. require notice of suspension proceedings to be sent to the student's parents within 24 hours of the decision to conduct the them.

3. require a hearing to be held, with the student present, within 72 hours of his removal.

The court also held that the students, at the time of the hearing, could hear the statements in support of the charges, make any statements they might wish in mitigation, speak in their own defense, and the school did not have an obligation to allow the student to be represented at the hearing by counsel.

In reviewing the decision of the lower court, the Supreme Court gave a thorough discussion of the principle of due process in education in general. First, they answered the claim by the school district that there was no need for due process to suspend students, because they did not have a constitutional right to receive an education. The Court said that the right to a public education did not have to be given in the Constitution in order to be a constitutionally protected right. Once the right to a free public education was given by an outside source, in this case by state statute, then the right to that education was protected for all school children by the Constitution, and they could not be deprived of that right. The Court pointed out that constitutionally protected interests are normally "not created by the Constitution. Rather they are created and their dimensions defined' by an independent source such a state statutes or rules entitling the citizen to certain benefits." (Roth, 1972 as quoted in Goss). The Court also relied on their prior decision in Brown to reiterate that the deprivation of the right to schooling was a serious event in the life of a child, even if it was only for a period of ten days or less. The Court also noted that the "good name and reputation" of the child were involved and to allow the school to make permanent entries on the record of a child without due process could permanently "damage the students' standing with their fellow pupils and their teachers as well as interfere with later opportunities for higher education and employment."

The Court did not go as far as the students would have liked, however. They did not give the students the right to counsel at a suspension hearing. They specifically said that this would be entirely too cumbersome, time-consuming and expensive, given the "countless" brief disciplinary suspensions nationwide. What they did require, however, was that the child and his parents be given immediate notice of the charges against him, and that if he denies the charges, he is entitled to an explanation of the evidence against him, as well as a chance to present his own side of the story. They said also that they did not give the suspended student the right to rebuttal witnesses, cross-examination, etc., for the same reasons that they did not require the presence of counsel. They also said that to make the procedure longer and more formal might, in fact, make it a less effective part of the school discipline process.

The Supreme Court made it clear that it was limiting the due process requirements for suspensions of ten days or less because they were so common and, even though they deprived the students of the right to attend school for a period of time, not permanent.

In the cases involving the expulsion of students as disciplinary measures, the Court has taken a similarly generous stance. It is clear that, where the student has been guilty of a form of misconduct, the Court wants the school to bear the burden of proving the charges and of allowing both notice and a hearing, but does not want to impose a very strict standard, recognizing the duty of the student to assist in his own education by observing certain minimum standards of behavior, and also recognizing the burden to the schools of having to cope with unruly and uncooperative students.

In the case of students expelled from a state university for misconduct (Dixon, 1961) the Court held that the students should be given notice, which notice should include a specific statement of the charges and the grounds which would justify expulsion if proven. The Court said that in different cases, the nature of the hearing would vary "depending upon the circumstances of the case" and in the case at bar, the charges would require a hearing at which the administrative body or Board of the university could hear both sides of the dispute in detail. This is contrasted with the case of a student being dismissed for academic reasons, in which case such hearing would not be necessary (Horowitz, 1978). The Court felt that while it was not necessary in an expulsion to have a full judicial hearing with cross-examination of witnesses, it was necessary to inform the student of the witnesses against him and to allow him a chance to present some witnesses on his own behalf. This seems to reiterate the general feelings of courts in suspension and expulsion cases that what really matters is that the notice and hearing requirements be fundamentally fair, and commensurate with the severity of the penalty sought (Due, 1963). The courts have dealt with the basic issues of disciplinary suspensions and expulsions on many occasions, and each time have decided the cases in such a way that indicates that the "due process" necessary was to be determined by balancing the severity of the sanctions sought against the procedural safeguards provided by the school (Tinker, 1969 and Tibbs, 1971).

As the problem of "due process" for students became more of an issue nationwide, and particularly as the litigation in this area increased, school administrators, school boards, and teachers became increasingly concerned with setting standards which could be followed, and which would provide written guidelines for dealing with discipline of students. Several groups drafted "model" discipline codes (Appendix C). It remained for the courts and then the Congress to establish specific written requirements for "due process" procedures for one group of students, the "exceptional" children.
CHAPTER III

THE EARLY CASES INVOLVING THE RIGHT TO DUE PROCESS FOR CHILDREN IN SPECIAL EDUCATION CLASSES

In 1971 and 1972, there were two major cases in which children in special education were found to be entitled to education as a civil right, and to be entitled therefore to "due process" procedural safeguards before being excluded from school, or placed in a special class. These two cases, known as Mills (1972) and PARC (1971, 1972) were the first in which the courts had set out elaborate procedures to be followed by the schools for identifying and correctly placing special education students.

PARC was a case brought by the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children (PARC) and the parents of several retarded children against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. At that time, the Pennsylvania statutes provided for compulsory education of all children from eight years of age until seventeen years of age, but had several other provisions which had, in fact been used to keep retarded children out of the schools. First, the compulsory school ages had been used to postpone admitting retarded children to school until they were eight, or to expel them as soon as they reached seventeen. In addition, there were provisions in the law that relieved the Board of Education of the responsibility for educating any child who was certified by a psychologist to be uneducable and untrainable (which then shifted the burden of care for that child to the Department of Welfare, which had no provisions for educating or training such children) or to indefinitely postpone the admission to school of any child who had not attained the mental age of five years (which many retarded children would never attain) or to excuse from compulsory attendance any child whom a psychologist found could not profit from schooling (PARC, at 282). Those provisions had been used to exclude retarded children from the schools. At the time the suit was filed, all the named plaintiffs were excluded from the public schools. The contentions of the plaintiffs were:

1. that these statutes offend due process because they lack any provision for notice and a hearing before a retarded person is either excluded from a public education or a change is made in his educational assignment within the public system.

2. the two provisions violate equal protection because of the premise of the statute which necessarily assumes that certain retarded children are uneducable and untrainable lacks a rational basis in fact.

3. because the Constitution and laws of Pennsylvania guarantee an education to all children, these two sections violate due process in that they arbitrarily and capriciously deny that given right to retarded children.

The plaintiffs did not argue that the provisions of the School Code (Section 1330, excusal from attendance, and Section 1326, definition of compulsory attendance age) were on their face unconstitutional, but rather that they violated "due process" and "equal protection" as they were being applied to exclude retarded children. The parties signed a consent agreement in 1971 which dealt with the above issues. It was stipulated that the section referring to the compulsory school attendance age was designed to forgive parents for not sending children to school if they were not yet eight or were more than seventeen, and was not meant to excuse school authorities for excluding children. It was also agreed that children who were certified to the care of the Welfare Department would be provided with training "appropriate to the capacities of that child." The Commonwealth and the parents agreed that, since the Commonwealth had undertaken to provide education to all children between the ages of six and twenty-one, it would have a duty to place "each mentally retarded child in a free, public program of education and training appropriate to the child's capacity."

Additionally, the Section 1330 provision that had been used to exclude children who had not yet attained a mental age of five years, was agreed by the parties to mean only that the school authorities could refuse to admit such children to a regular school in the lowest primary grade (as opposed to a special school). There was also a provision in the statute that had been used to deny tuition for private schools to retarded children who did not also suffer from another disability (the section was worded in such a way that it only provided tuition to private schools for children with certain named physical handicaps) and it was agreed that that provision would no longer be applied in that manner. The defendants also agreed not to deny homebound instruction for retarded children simply because they did not also have a physical impairment or because their condition was not temporary.

The case was not settled without considerable objection, particularly from local school districts. Ultimately, however, the Court amended the settlement and entered an order settling the case.
The order had the following provisions:

1. The schools could not apply the above-mentioned statutory provisions in such a way as to deny any mentally retarded child access to a free public program of education and training.

2. The schools could not deny tuition (and maintenance where necessary) to any mentally retarded child on any basis other than the terms used for other exceptional children.

3. The schools could not deny homebound education to retarded children merely because they lacked a physical disability or because their condition was not temporary.

4. The schools would provide every retarded person between six and twenty-one years of age with access to a free public program of education and training appropriate to his learning capacities, as soon as possible, but in no event later than September 1, 1972 (this order was entered on May 5, 1972).

5. In any school district which had a free public program of pre-school education, every mentally retarded child of the same age was to be provided access to a free public program of education and training appropriate to his learning capacities, not later than September 1, 1972.

6. Each district would provide notice and an opportunity for a hearing to any child who is, or is thought to be, mentally retarded.

7. Each district would re-evaluate the educational assignment of every mentally retarded child at least every two years, annually if the parents requested it, and each time would provide notice and the opportunity for a hearing.

The Amended Stipulation which was entered into on February 14, 1972, includes much of the terminology and many of the notice and hearing provisions that were adopted by the Congress in P.L. 94-142 (Appendix B).

The court, in deciding some of the issues in PARC, relied heavily on the Brown argument that education was a constitutionally protected right, granted by the states, and that all the children in the states were entitled therefore to an equal educational opportunity, and that they could not be deprived of this opportunity except by due process of law.

The difference between the very lenient due process procedures prescribed in the disciplinary cases and the very stringent procedures in PARC and also in Mills, and later in the Statute, appears to be based on the different balance between the rights to be protected and the reasons for abridging the rights. In the instances of the disciplinary cases, the students had done something affirmative which caused action to be taken against them. In the matter of handicapped children, the schools had not, in many cases, even afforded the children an opportunity to begin attending school, and in no cases had an action by the child been responsible for his exclusion from school. The decisions are written in such a way that it becomes clear from reading them that the courts were clearly offended at the callous treatment given to defenseless children who already bore the burden of a severe handicap, and therefore set far more stringent rules for their protection than they did for children who, although still allowed the benefit of rebuttal, were disruptive and had caused some form of turmoil in the schools of their own volition.

The second major case in special education in the early seventies was Mills v. Board of Education, (1972), another class action suit brought against a school district (Washington, D.C.) for excluding children who were handicapped. In this case, all the children were not retarded, but some were emotionally disturbed, behavioral problems, or hyperactive. The class was to include, in addition, children who were speech impaired, learning disabled, blind, and deaf and who were not receiving an education at that time. It was estimated by the plaintiffs that there were 22,000 such children at that time in the school district, and that 18,000 of them were not receiving a program of special education. These figures were based on estimates made by the school district itself to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (1971). All seven named plaintiffs were residents of the school district and were denied free appropriate public education by the district. Some of the children had been able to be accepted by a private school but were unable to afford the tuition. All the plaintiffs were black, but that was not an issue and the class represented was not limited to blacks. Many of the children had been in school and had been expelled or reassigned without any hearing or without notice.

The defense in this case was one that has been thought of many times since by school boards and taxpayers alike in this country, but one which has not as yet convinced a court, that special education was simply too expensive. The school district said it could not afford to educate the children involved in the manner they were asking without taking a significant amount of money from the educational resources then being used for the "normal" children in the district, thereby causing the education of more able children to suffer greatly. In fact, in Mills, the argument was made that to divert funds in that manner would be contrary to the intent of the Congress when it provided the funds to the district, and therefore illegal.

The Court noted that it had already held that constitutional protections could not be denied citizens on the basis of the expense involved (Goldberg, 1969).

The Court then rendered its decision, which in many ways resembled the agreement in PARC, particularly in the requirements for notice and a hearing, which were carefully specified. It also gave the district an affirmative duty to identify all children in the district who were exceptional (members of the plaintiff class) within thirty days of the order. The district was ordered to advertise widely the availability of placement for special students, so that children and their parents who had previously been unaware of the possibility of receiving special education at the expense of the school district, or children who had previously been denied education at the expense of the district, would know that the services would now be available.

The district was required to report within forty-five days the names and placements of the class members so identified, the programs which they had been given, and the numbers of hearings that had been requested, and the determinations which had been made from those hearings.

The hearing procedures were spelled out very specifically, and as in PARC, they provided for notice, a hearing before an impartial hearing officer, and for the hearing to take place before a child could be moved into a new educational placement. The parents were given the right to see records, to present evidence at the hearing, and to cross-examine school personnel. These requirements were in many ways the same as those set out in the settlement in PARC, and are again, in many ways the same as those that were codified in P.L.94-142.

Both PARC and Mills established very clearly the rights of the handicapped to an education, suitable to their abilities, and at public expense. The requirements for the due process to be given to a child and his parents prior to placing him in a special education setting were extremely stringent. It was clear in both cases that the courts were unhappy with what they felt was the unfair and unequal treatment given to the handicapped children by the school districts. The requirements for due process were far more strict than those set out in the disciplinary cases, where the courts were not so clearly sympathetic to the students.
In both Mills and PARC it is clear that the courts feel it is necessary to have strict, written procedures to be followed in the matter of placement of handicapped children. It is also clear that they have established standards for the education of the handicapped children of the United States. These standards are specified in both cases: the child is to receive a free, appropriate public education. That terminology, first used in PARC and Mills, became a part of P.L. 94-142, and is the standard by which education for the handicapped children of this country is now measured.
CHAPTER IV

Immediately after the decisions in Mills and PARC, as well as some other scattered suits throughout the United States (MARC, 1974) the members of the U.S. Congress began to receive considerable pressure from the various parent groups representing parents of handicapped children, and from groups representing the handicapped themselves. It became clear that there were two ways this problem of schooling for the handicapped could be resolved. The first would be for the lobbyist groups to file lawsuits similar to Mills and PARC in every jurisdiction, in order to establish case law in each place that had a slightly different school code or method of dealing with handicapped children. The second would be for the Congress to pass a federal statute mandating requirements for special education on a nationwide basis that would follow the guidelines set out in Mills and PARC. It was clear that the second was by far the more expeditious and financially conservative method.

The initial response to the decisions in PARC and Mills had been a flurry of filings of lawsuits nationwide, as groups supporting expanded educational opportunities for the handicapped began to realize that the climate among the members of the federal judiciary supported their cause. Now, these same groups began to pressure legislators to introduce measures that would establish uniform requirements for special education in the various parts of the country. This move was considered a faster and less expensive means to the same end, and would also circumvent the difficult problems that might have been faced by groups pursuing lawsuits in states where there were few or no requirements for special education, and where the courts might have taken a very different view of what was required. This would have resulted in even wider differences in education provided for these children from state to state than there already were, or else numerous cases which would have had to be pursued all the way to the Supreme Court. Even then, with the varying state statutes, it was quite likely that they could have been interpreted so that there would still be large differences from state to state. Looking at the great variations existing then, the groups representing the handicapped and their parents decided that the most useful route for them to take was to pursue the possibility of uniform federal legislation for special education (Hearings, pp.227 ff).

The results that the various groups were seeking came slowly, and in pieces. The first major piece of legislation to be enacted which was directly supportive of handicapped education was the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, P.L. 93-112. This was the law that required that all programs receiving money from the federal government refrain from practicing any form of discrimination against the handicapped. The law has several parts. One prohibits discrimination against the handicapped by those contracting with the federal government (Sec. 501), another by federal agencies themselves (Sec. 503) and a third by agencies receiving federal funds to assist in their operation. It is the last of these, Section 504, which has been used to force the states to provide special education for all of the children who are in need of it.

This Act was first introduced in the House of Representatives by Carl Vanik of Ohio as an amendment to the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 USC 2000 et seq.) (117 Cong. Record 45974-5). It was introduced in nearly identical form in the Senate by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (118 Cong. Record 106-7). These two measures were made part of the then-pending Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-112, 29 USC 794). The Section reads, in pertinent part:

No otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States, ...shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance...

After the bill was enacted, many of the groups which had lobbied so long and hard for its passage were disappointed by the response of the schools. They had expected that the combined effect of the previous court decisions and the new legislation would be to open all kinds of programs for handicapped youngsters in the United States (Cottle, 1976). Instead, there was little response. A few forward-looking states, and in some cases only certain school districts within states, began to respond with programs which, while not necessarily exactly like those described in Mills and PARC, were certainly more within the spirit that they intended (Hearings, pp. 203 ff) but by and large, there was very little response to encourage the parents and the handicapped adults who had worked so long and hard to win the right to an education for America's handicapped children. (Hearings, pp. 243 ff). There was considerable confusion about whether handicapped children and their right to an education were in fact intended to fall within the scope of the Rehabilitation Act. In 1974, Congress amended the Rehabilitation Act, and in so doing clarified their definition of handicapped to include "physically or mentally handicapped children who may be denied admission to federally supported school systems on the basis of their handicap." (S. Rep., pp. 6388-9). After more waiting time, and no further improvement in the educational programs offered, or the appearance of the regulations which should have been forthcoming from H.E.W. for the implementation of the Act, and even a lawsuit against the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (Cherry, 1976) the concerned groups decided to demonstrate the need more graphically. A series of sit-ins, involving large numbers of wheelchair patients as well as other handicapped individuals, were staged in Washington, D.C. The proposed regulations, which were opposed vehemently by most school districts, who feared extensive and expensive overhauls to their special education programs, were finally signed in 1977 (42 Fed. Reg. 22676, May 4, 1977). This finally gave effect to Section 504, which has been held to extend the right to education to handicapped children, just as Brown extended it to black children (Hairston, 1976, Mattie T., 1977, and Tatro, 1980). This meant that children who were handicapped could not be excluded from schools without being given "due process of law" before they were removed. It was the Education for All Handicapped Children Act, P.L. 94-142, which spelled out clearly just what those due process rights would be.

P.L. 94-142 began working its way through the Congress in 1972, at which time the Senate Subcommittee on the Handicapped began what was to be several years of extensive hearings in major cities nationwide. The transcript of the hearings totals several thousand pages (Hearings, pp. 1972 ff). In the course of the hearings, the senators heard testimony by parents, parent organizations, teachers, administrators, handicapped individuals themselves, and representatives of state educational agencies where programs were already being provided who thought that their experiences would be useful to others. The Bill eventually evolved into S.6 and after its passage in 1975 was known as P.L. 94-142. The full effect of the Act, requiring total compliance by all school districts receiving federal funds of any sort, was to require that every child identified as handicapped was to receive a "free appropriate public education." The act's implementation was delayed until September 1, 1978 so that school districts would have time to hire teachers, locate children in need, and develop programs. The school districts were given the responsibility for locating all children who were handicapped, and for educating them from the age of three years until the age of twenty-one years (42 Fed. Reg 42474, August 23, 1977). The regulations identified and described the children who were included in the definition of "handicapped", and also specified the procedures necessary to locate and serve these children.
It was these regulations which first set out clearly the procedures which were to be followed by the school districts in order to protect the "due process rights" of handicapped children. The procedures are very similar in all respects to the procedures outlined in the settlements of PARC and Mills, as well as several "smaller" cases which had arisen during the time between the first two major cases and the issuance of the regulations. In those cases, the settlements had been based in great measure on the Mills and PARC settlements (MARC).

Two essential ingredients of "due process" in any type of case, regardless of what the right is that is involved, are notice and a hearing. In order for the rights of an individual to be preserved, it is essential that regardless of what it is that he is to be deprived of, he must be given notice that he is to lose something, and a chance to challenge the loss at a hearing (Nebbia). The type of notice which must be given as well as the kind of hearing which must be held vary according to the severity of the proposed deprivation. In the case of handicapped children in the schools, they are being deprived of what is seen as their right to an education. Therefore, the Congress attempted to spell out the procedures which it felt were necessary for the schools to follow before removing a child from a regular setting and placing him in special education, before changing his special education placement, or before removing him from the public school altogether. Some of these procedures are based on the earlier cases involving suspensions and expulsions, and some on Mills and PARC. Some are refinements which occurred during the process of the extensive hearings which were held.

One provision which surfaced during the Senate hearings (Hearings, pp.203 ff) and which many people expected to see implemented was a requirement that the child be represented at a hearing by a guardian ad litem. The theory was that, in many cases, neither the parent nor the school would adequately represent the actual best interest of the child when it came to discussing placement. An example used was that of the fairly severely retarded child who was becoming difficult for his parents to manage. The parents in such a situation often push to have the child placed in a residential treatment center (otherwise know as an "institution") while the school district, aware that under P.L. 94-142 it would be paying the entire cost of this placement, would push strongly to keep the child living at home and attending school in the regular public school, perhaps in a special classroom. In the early discussions of P.L. 94-142, it was expected that it would be required that in such situations a guardian ad litem would be appointed to represent the child's position, which would very likely be someplace in the middle (i.e., a special school placement but living at home). After the passage of the Act, but before the publication of the final regulations, the American Association on Mental Deficiency held a workshop to explain the new law to advocates and attorneys, and at that time it was presented with the guardian ad litem provision (AAMD Workshop, 1975). By the time the regulations were published, however, that provision did not appear, and it is assumed under the current regulations that the parents represent the best interests of the child as long as the child is a minor or incompetent, and a guardian ad litem is only provided in the event the parents are unwilling or unable to act. In that case, it is usually a person from a state agency, in Illinois the Division of Children and Family Services.

With the exception of that provision, the regulations were much as expected. They provide that, in order to receive funding for the schools, the school districts must prove that they are in compliance with the requirements of P.L. 94-142. It was the financial "teeth" in the Act which finally forced the school districts to alter existing programs or to provide new ones where little or no education had been provided for these children in the past.

The regulations specify the steps that a school district must follow in order to provide "due process" on making placements, or in changing placements. They also provide a detailed procedure to be followed in the case of a disagreement over a placement. This is what is known as the "due process hearing" procedure. (20 U.S.C. 1415)

The basic elements of the requirements of due process procedures are as follows:

1. The parent must be given written notice prior to identification, placement, or change of placement of a child by the local education agency (LEA).
2. The parent must give written consent before the child can be evaluated for placement in special education, or before the child can be placed.
3. The notice to the parents must contain:
a. complete notice of the parents' rights under the Act.
b. an explanation of the procedural safeguards available to the parents under the Act.
c. a complete description of what action the LEA is proposing to take, and the reasons for it as well as any other proposed courses of action the LEA may have considered and their reasons for rejecting them.
d. descriptions of any and all tests, procedures, forms, records or reports which are used by the LEA in making its decisions.
e. any other factors which the LEA has considered in making this decision.

4. This notice to the parents must be in their language, or one they understand completely, and must be written in terminology which the general public could understand (this provision has been interpreted by many to mean that these parents must understand it).

Once a parent has received notice of the proposed placement for the child, and has consented to the evaluation, he does not forfeit his continuing rights to procedural safeguards. After the evaluation is complete, the Act requires that a multi-disciplinary staffing be convened to discuss the results and to plan the educational future of the child. The parents must be given the opportunity to be present at the staffing, and all the procedures, tests, etc., must be explained to them. In case a child is already in a special education placement and is being moved to another placement, the parents must have the same notice (Doe, 1976). It is at the multi-disciplinary staffing that the individualized educational program (IEP) is written, and both the parents and the school representatives must sign it. It has been suggested that this document is a "contract" of a legal nature between the schools and the parents, but it is quite clear from the Congressional History of the Act that this is not so (Cong. Hist., pp. 3 ff). The parent also is given the right to an independent evaluation of the child at public expense under certain circumstances.

If the parent disagrees with the evaluation provided by the LEA, then he may have an independent outside evaluation at public expense. The LEA has the right, however, to initiate due process procedures under the Act, and if they are able to show that their evaluation is correct, then the parent still has the right to an independent outside evaluation, but not at public expense. (20 U.S.C. 1415 (b)(1)(A).

The procedure for appealing any decision which is not agreeable to both sides is carefully detailed in the regulations (20 U.S.C. 1415 et seq.) This procedure is what has come to be known as the "Due Process Hearing" procedure.

Either the parent or the LEA may initiate a hearing procedure. The hearing must be held within forty-five days of the request (although there are certain provisions for an extension of this time by the hearing officer), and the decision must be rendered and mailed to the parties within that period of time. The place of the hearing must be reasonably convenient for all parties. If the parents are not fluent in English, then an interpreter must be provided for them. If they are deaf, a sign language interpreter must be used.
Each party in a hearing has the right to counsel and to advice of experts in special education or the other aspects of care of the handicapped that may be involved. Each party may present evidence, cross-examine and confront witnesses, and compel the attendance of witnesses (by subpoena). Either party may prevent the introduction at the hearing of any evidence of which they were not given notice at least five days in advance of the hearing. This provision allows both sides time to answer evidence presented. There is a right to a written or electronic verbatim record of the hearing (a tape or a court reporter's transcript) and to written findings of fact. After the written findings of fact are obtained, the LEA must submit them for review to the state advisory panel after removing names, addresses, and any other personally identifying information. It the parents wish, the child may be present at the hearing, and the hearing may be open to the public. (20 U.S.C. 1415 (d)). The hearing officer is to be an impartial person, and the specific procedure for the selection of a hearing officer has varied from state to state (See Chapter VI). A person who works for or closely with the LEA is not qualified to act as a hearing officer (Compochiaro, 1978).

If the parties do not contest the decision of the hearing officer within thirty days, then that decision is final. If one party does not agree with the findings of the hearing officer, that party may ask the State education agency (SEA) to review the findings, and the SEA must review all the findings and mail their decision to the parties within thirty days. Under certain circumstances an appeal may not be available to the state agency (the regulations do not say under what circumstances, but it would appear most likely in the case of a state agency that has elected to forego P.L. 94-142 funds in order to avoid some of these procedures. In that case, the action would be proceeding under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and some of these procedures would not be available). If that should occur, or if the school or the parents disagree with the findings of the SEA on review, then either party may appeal by filing a civil action in state or federal court. For the purposes of the filing in a federal district court, the matter is considered to be a federal cause of action, so that there is no dollar amount requirement for the court to have jurisdiction (20 U.S.C. 1415 Sec. 615 (e) (2)). The court has access to all the records and transcripts, as well as the ability to hear additional evidence if needed. It renders a decision based on the preponderance of the evidence. As in other civil proceedings, there is a right to appeal to a higher court.

During the time the placement, diagnosis, or other issue disagreed about is being resolved, the child stays in the placement he previously had unless both the parents and the SEA can agree to another interim placement. If he is applying for initial admission to school, he is placed in the public school until the dispute can be settled. The exception is that for children who pose a danger to themselves or to others, the school may follow its usual emergency procedures. It is necessary, of course, that these procedures follow the guidelines set forth by the earlier cases involving suspension and expulsion of students for disciplinary reasons. In short, then, the due process procedures outlined by the regulations implementing P.L. 94-142 are meant to safeguard the procedural due process rights of the child. The complaints that a child has been wrongly excluded, diagnosed, or placed which are the subject of a due process hearing, appeal, or court proceeding are to protect the substantive due process rights of that child (Cong. Rec., Nov. 19, 1975, pp.S 20432 ff).
CHAPTER V

SELECTED CASES SINCE THE PASSAGE OF THE STATUTES RELATING TO THE EDUCATION OF THE HANDICAPPED

Since the passage of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act (Section 504) and P.L. 94-142 there have been numerous cases in the courts in this country filed on behalf of handicapped children, all asking the courts to clarify certain provisions of the statutes. In most cases, the issue involved has been the "related services" provision of P.L. 94-142. This provision requires that the schools provide the children with "related services" necessary in order for them to be able to profit from the education they are being offered. The act lists specifically such items as transportation, speech pathology and audiology, psychological services, physical and occupational therapy, recreation, early identification and assessment, counseling services, medical services necessary for diagnosis and evaluation, school health services, social work services within the school, and parent counseling and training (34 C.F.R. 300.13). Also, the act requires the schools to provide any other developmental, corrective, or supportive service necessary for the child to benefit from special education (34 C.F.R. 300.13 and Comment). The lack of clarity of this last provision is what has led to so much litigation. Obviously, the parents have been asking the schools to fund as much in the way of related services as possible, and school districts are reluctant to do so. Some of these services may clearly be those which would benefit the child in other situations as well, and the schools have said they were not therefore primarily educational in nature, but the courts have held that that did not matter and that the intent of the act was not to limit related services to those which were only school related (Tokarcik, 1981). The argument of the courts has been that to deny these related services is in effect a denial of the due process rights of the child because it prevents him, without notice and a hearing, from being able to profit from his educational experience (Tatro, 1981).

Schools have become increasingly worried over the possibility of the expansion of the rights of children, and therefore the expenses of school districts as these cases have developed, and the courts have liberally interpreted related services. In a recent case, the United State Supreme Court was first called upon to rule on this issue. The case involved a young girl, Amy Rowley (Rowley, 1982) who is deaf but has a minimal amount of residual hearing. Her parents insisted she be provided with a sign-language interpreter for all her classes, even though she was receiving other help and doing extremely well in the classroom. The lower courts had supported the parents' position, but the Supreme Court reversed, holding that since she was doing better academically than the average child in her grade, and progressing easily from grade to grade, it was clear that Amy was benefitting from the education she was receiving, and the school was providing adequate personalized services for her. They went on to say that the P.L. 94-142 did not require that each student be educated to the maximum potential of his ability, but only that they receive adequate educational opportunities, and Amy was clearly receiving an adequate education. This decision was viewed with great relief by school districts, especially after some of the other very liberal interpretations that the P.L. 94-142 had been receiving in other courts.

One other related service against which the school districts had fought, and on which they have apparently lost, is clean intermittent catheterization (CIC). Children with spina bifida, who do not have bladder control because of injury to nerves below a certain level in the spine, must be catheterized every few hours on a regular schedule to prevent the buildup of urine and a resulting urinary tract infection. The school had claimed that this was clearly a medical service and could not be performed by school personnel. The parents said that unless the child was catheterized every four hours, she could not attend school, and would therefore be denied the free appropriate public education to which she was entitled. The district court in Texas (Tatro, 1981) agreed with the school, but the Fifth Circuit reversed, holding that without CIC the child could not attend school, and that made it a related service to be provided by the district. At least one other court has reached the same conclusion, but with slightly different reasoning (Tokarcik), holding that CIC was "occupational therapy" necessary to provide the child with an educational opportunity equivalent to that provided to her non-handicapped peers.

Another related service issue which is even more expensive to the districts, and also less easy to define as a service, is psychotherapy. In P.L. 94-142, the definition of related services lists "psychological services" but does not specifically mention psychotherapy, and it mentions psychological services in the context of differentiating between it and medical services, so that it is not at all clear what was intended in the way of psychological services. The regulations are more explicit, but still exclude the term "psychotherapy" so this has continued to be a source of disagreement between parents and schools. In several cases, the courts have held that psychotherapy is a related service, as it is often necessary in order for a child to be able to profit from the special education he or she is receiving (In the Matter of the "A" Family, Gary B., Papacoda).

In a recent Illinois case, a child was placed in a residential setting in which he received an integrated program encompassing both his psychological and educational needs (Walker). The Appellate Court upheld the lower court's finding that the educational and psychological services were inextricably integrated.

In a recent and extremely important Illinois case, the Illinois Supreme Court had before it a case involving a seventeen-year-old girl who was in a mental hospital for treatment of a suicidal depression. The parents and her psychiatrist together petitioned the school district to pay the entire cost of her medical care, saying that she could not possibly be well enough to benefit from an education until she had recovered from her illness. In her case, there were complicating facts. She had dropped out of school at sixteen, and her mother had re-enrolled her just prior to asking the school to pay for her hospitalization. The school said that they would be happy to provide an education for her, and would supply a private tutor for her just as soon as she was well enough to see one. The parents and the psychiatrist argued that this was not sufficient, as she needed the psychiatric care in order to get to the point where she could begin to learn. A further complicating factor was that she would soon reach her eighteenth birthday, which would terminate her right to a free public education if she were not in special education, but that right would continue until she was twenty-one if she could convince the court that she was in fact eligible for special education. The decision disappointed many who had hoped that the Court would find in favor of the school district, rather than setting a precedent which could have cost this district approximately $120,000.00 per year for this child alone, but which would also allow this kind of care for others like her, placing an intolerable financial burden on the schools of Illinois. The Court chose not to address the issue of whether this hospitalization was a necessary related service, but remanded the case to the circuit court for a further determination based on its (the Supreme Court's) finding that the hospital to which the girl had been admitted was not on the approved list of providers of the Governor's Purchased Care Review Board, and therefore could not serve as a provider of medical care (Claudia K, 1982). This issue is not, therefore resolved yet in Illinois.

A similar issue, and one often litigated is the provision of residential care to severely handicapped children. Obviously, this is much more expensive than providing classes within the regular school system, even if they are special classes, or in a self-contained school for special children (Update, 1982). The problem is in determining whether the residential placement is required for educational or non-educational reasons. The Congressional History of P.L. 94-142 is quite clear in stating that there are some needs which are clearly non-educational in nature and that these need not be provided by the LEA (S.Rep., 1975 at 22). Unfortunately it is not always clear on the facts of which services are for which purpose and the courts have decided many similar cases in attempts to clarify this issue. In the first major case addressing this issue (North) the court held that the child's multiple disorders requiring residential placement made it impossible to separate out the physical and emotional needs from the educational needs and ordered the school district to pay the entire cost of residential placement for the child, rather than just place him in a self-contained classroom in the public school system as the school district had wanted to do.

In several other cases, the courts have followed the North reasoning that one cannot separate adequately the parts of a child, and that if it is necessary to meet the physical and emotional needs of the child in order to teach him, then that burden must be borne by the school district (Kruelle, Erdman). This would appear to be a judicial expansion of the original provisions of P.L. 94-142, which state specifically that if the child would need the placement regardless of his educational needs, then it is not an educational placement and should not be provided at school district expense. P.L. 94-142 clearly states that school districts are responsible only for those placements necessary for the education of a child (34 C.F.R. Sec. 300 and 302, 20 U.S.C. Sec. 1413 (a)(4)(B)).

In summary, the cases which have been heard since the passage of the legislation providing education for handicapped children have been focused largely on the matter of those "related services" which must be provided under the Act to handicapped children so that schools do not deprive the children of their right to a free appropriate education, without their due process rights being preserved. There has been a consistent trend in the courts to find that many extensive and costly services are necessary to children in order for them to benefit from education, and that these must be provided at school district expense if the rights of the children are to be preserved. This has not been expanded to include provision for an absolute maximum education in accord with the potential of the child.
CHAPTER VI

THE ILLINOIS IMPLEMENTATION OF THE LAW

The law in Illinois implementing P.L. 94-142 has followed very, very closely the federal regulations, the cases, and the Congressional history of the Act. The rules for the administration of Special Education (Rules, 1979) give the specific procedures for initiating the due process hearing procedure in Illinois.

First, the schools are charged with all the responsibility for notifying parents of all pending actions and for conferring with them in compliance with P.L. 94-142 and its regulations. The specific procedure for initiating the due process hearing procedure under the regulations on Illinois are as follows:

1. The request for a hearing is made to the local school district in writing, including the reasons for the hearing and all other pertinent information.

2. Hearing requests are limited to one a year, and within 10 days of notification of a proposed placement, if the purpose is to disagree with a placement.

3. The school district must notify the Illinois Office of Education (IOE) by certified mail within five school days of the request, and request the appointment of a hearing officer. There are specific requirements as to what must be in this notice (see Appendix A) and a copy of this letter must be sent to the person who requested the hearing.
4. If the district does not honor the request for a hearing, it must so notify the parents within five days, in writing, stating reasons for the denial.

5. The parent may appeal directly to the IOE, and the State Superintendent may order a hearing or other appropriate measures.

6. If the request is sent to IOE, a list must be provided within five working days of five trained impartial hearing officers, one of whom will be selected to conduct the local hearing. The requirements for these officers are contained in the Rules, Title Ten, Section 6 (see Appendix A).

The selection of the hearing officer is made in the following way (in Illinois):

1. The parents receive the list of five prospective hearing officers and strike one name.

2. The school strikes a second name.

3. This process continues until one person is left. He or she then becomes the hearing officer.

The hearing officers in Illinois are trained by IOE for the job of conducting hearings. They are also required to attend re-training and updating meetings on a regular basis. Most of the hearing officers in Illinois are not attorneys, although some are. The requirements for this position are one of the larger areas in which specific state regulations have varied.

Within five days of the selection of the hearing officer, he or she sets the time and place for the hearing. It is to be at a time and place mutually convenient to the parties but in no event more than fifteen days after the selection of the hearing officer. This time may be extended up to another fifteen days if the hearing officer wishes, and longer if both parties agree.

IOE is responsible for informing the parents of their rights during the hearing (counsel, evidence, etc.) not less than five days prior to the hearing. The regulations in Illinois (Title Ten, Section 7, Appendix A) follow exactly those in the federal regulations.

The hearing is not to be considered an adversary proceeding, and the rules of evidence do not apply. It appears from some of the available synopses of the hearings held under the first two years of P.L. 94-142 that some of the attorneys did not abide by this understanding. It seems that some of the hearings have resulted in adversary-type proceedings, especially in the aggressive cross-examination of witnesses. The Congress was wise in its discussion of this issue, holding the opinion that whatever went on at the hearing, there was still a child involved who would be attending school in the district in the future, and that the aim was for the parents and the school to work together, and not against each other (Cong. Rep., pp. 227 ff). One reason for the requirement that the rule of evidence need not apply was that the Congress realized that in such a situation there might be many people useful to the decisions to be made, and especially with what might be "soft" information about a child, but which certainly might be excluded as either irrelevant or hearsay if the rules were used, but which could be extremely useful in the type of determination to be made in a due process hearing.
The hearing officer must render a written decision within ten days of the hearing, and it is binding unless appealed. The decision may be appealed to the ISBE with a completed ISBE appeal form and five copies of the transcript of the hearing. The child's placement may not be changed pending either a hearing or an appeal. The exceptions are those previously mentioned.

For a state-level appeal, a hearing panel is convened. This panel consists of attorneys and trained educational personnel of the IOE. The panel will review the record, the procedures, and may compel the appearance of witnesses and require additional information. Further regulations for this review are detailed in the Rules (Ill. Rev.Stats., Ch. 122, Sec. 2-3.38).

All hearings are reported to the ISBE in summary form, and the brief summaries are distributed to hearing officers, directors of special education, and some other concerned agencies. Other than this, there is no report made of the proceedings at due process hearings. It is not possible, for instance, for most school districts, parents, or other concerned persons to know either what the reasoning has been of hearing officers throughout the state, what the trends are in providing services, etc., for children in special education, or the other trends in special education decisions in the state unless these trends are passed along by word of mouth. The problem is obviously two-fold. It would be extremely useful for those involved in any way with special education in Illinois, whether it be as parent, teacher, student, litigator, advocate, or hearing officer, to know what the trends are in the state, and the rationale for the decisions that are being made. On the other hand, there is great need to protect the anonymity of the minor children involved, and in many cases the families involved. It would seem, however, that the greatest lack in the implementation in the law in Illinois is the lack of a reporting mechanism which could quite possibly prevent some of the questions from being heard again and again. It is the express intent of P.L. 94-142 that the hearings do not set precedent.

Of the cases which were "reported" they followed the same basic lines as the cases discussed in Chapter V. The earliest cases included several in which the parents had apparently not been fully advised of their rights by the LEA. As time went on, and the school districts became more aware of their duties, and probably also more aware that they would be held accountable, these cases diminished radically in number. Subsequent cases have involved related services in more than fifty percent of the cases. The majority of the other cases involved a disagreement over the nature of the evaluation provided by the district, or the placement the child was offered. It would appear that a clear-cut procedure for ensuring that due process procedural rights are protected are in place, and that they are working to the definite advantage of both the children involved and the school districts. It is not so clear what the substantive rights of each child are, and in fact it may not be possible to determine this except on a case by case basis, but it would appear that the next due process assurances for children will be in the form of some further definition of their substantive rights.
Summary data available from ISBE shows a marked decrease in the number of due process hearings held in Illinois over a two-year span since the institution of the regulations for due process procedures. In the first six months of 1980, 333 hearings were held in Illinois, while in the same period of 1982, only 143 hearings were held. One reason for this decline would be that the backlog of complaints from parents who had been at odds with their child's school for a long period of time would have been heard in the initial period after enactment of the rules. Another reason, and probably the one that would account for most of the decline, is that, with procedures carefully specified, both the school districts and the parents would be able to determine in advance their rights and duties, and the very fact that the rules are available as guidelines may be eliminating many of the previously indifferent or disorganized procedures that had been followed in the administration of special education in some districts. (For summary data, see Appendix D)
CHAPTER VII

CONCLUSIONS

The changes in special education law in the last quarter century have been extremely significant. Children who were either excluded from school completely or provided with severely inadequate placements in the past are now provided with legal safeguards which allow them to be in school settings appropriate to their disability at the expense of their local education agency.

Some of these changes have resulted from changes in the law by which children were found to have a "property right" in their education. To deprive them of that right would require all of the safeguards provided by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

The Congress, following the trends set by the courts in this area, has mandated very carefully considered procedures to be followed for the placement of children in special education. Some of the terminology still needs clarification, and it is likely that court cases will continue in the areas not clearly enough defined in the statutes or regulations. While it is clear that there are certain very explicit procedures which can be followed to guarantee that children are protected as to their rights to procedural due process, it is not nearly so clear as to what services must be provided, and under what circumstances if a child is not to have his substantive due process rights violated.
It would be to the advantage of everyone concerned with special education if the meaning of "related services" could be more clearly defined. The courts have expanded this term's meaning so greatly; that the only logical consequence is an untenable financial burden to the school districts which are paying for these services. What has not yet been addressed is the issue of whether the appropriate state agency is being asked to pay for these services, or whether perhaps, the burden belongs with some agency other than the school district.

It is precisely for this reason that eight agencies of the State of Illinois were forced to attempt to agree on procedures for funding the care of children in the state. Since the agencies had not agreed, and had not formulated a plan which met with the approval of the U.S. Office of Civil Rights, charges had been instituted and funds withheld. In order to secure the release of the federal funds for the state, and to be released from the charges of violating both Section 504 and P.L. 94-142, the agencies issued a temporary "Memorandum of Understanding" (Appendix E) in which they agreed to make certain changes in their procedures on a temporary basis, and to continue to attempt to negotiate an agreement among themselves. This agreement is currently in effect, but the agencies are attempting to reach a permanent settlement. The matter will be referred to the legislature for a statutory resolution in the event that administrative and regulatory changes cannot be made to the satisfaction of the agencies involved.

It may be that services for children will be more limited in the future. Schools are losing funds at a rapid rate now, and voters are consistently refusing to vote increases in the tax rate. If this should occur, the Supreme Court may have to re-examine the idea that funds should be merely re-allocated in providing funds for children in special education.

It is clear that the rules are basically good as they stand in terms of their ability to protect children's rights to procedural due process in special education. However, it also is becoming apparent that the rules are sometimes not followed. Walker was just such a case. If the school district and the mother had followed the procedures they should have, the case might well have ended long before it went to court. In that case the mother requested a due process hearing and the school did not grant it. There might still have been a disagreement on the facts of the case, but adherence by the district to proper procedure might have saved time and money for both sides, and would certainly have been to the advantage of the child.

It is worthy of note here that, while the cases in desegregation and those in special education began in the same manner, they have been resolved in very different fashions. In the area of desegregation, there has been little in the way of specific regulations for procedures to be followed in desegregating schools, and by and large, the problems have been handled on a continuing basis by litigation. There are several authors who have traced the development of this line of cases (Yudof, et.al., pp.413 f) On the other hand, in special education, there are such specific regulations available that the case law has been confined to definition of small portions of the regulations. There are some obvious differences between race and disability. Race is easier to define and diagnose, it remains constant throughout the life span of the child, and it is not subject to the many differences in degree, severity, etc., that handicap is. It is also not something which changes with educational treatment. Nevertheless, the comparisons between the two areas of law and their development would be a good subject for a future research study.

2.02 Each local school district, independently or in cooperation with other districts, shall provide a comprehensive program of special education for those exceptional children who are between the ages of three and twenty-one and who are resident in the district. Additionally, each local school district shall have a goal of providing full educational opportunity to all handicapped children birth to age three. A comprehensive program shall include:

1. A viable organizational and financial structure.
2. Systematic procedures for identifying and evaluating the need for special education and related services.
3. A continuum of program options which incorporate appropriate instructional programs, resource programs, and related services.
4. Qualified personnel, consistent with Article XII of these regulations, who can provide:
a. Administration of the program
b. Supervisory services
c. Instructional programs
d. Related services
e. Transportation services
f. Resource programs

5. Appropriate and adequate facilities, equipment and materials.

6. Functional relationships with those public and private agencies which can supplement or enhance the special education programs of the public schools.

7. Interaction with parents, and with other concerned persons, which facilitates the educational development of exceptional children.

2.04 The local school district shall be responsible for ensuring that those children who require special education services enjoy rights and privileges equal to those of all other children.

1. No exceptional child between the ages of three and twenty-one may be permanently excluded from the public schools, either by direct action by the board of education, by indication of the district's inability to provide an educational program, or by informal agreement between parents and the school district to allow the child to remain without an educational program.

2. A child who has been determined eligible for a special education instructional or resource program or related service shall not be expelled for behavior or a condition which is, or results from, an exceptional characteristic as defined in Illinois Revised Statutes, 1973, Chapter 122, Section 14-1.01 through Section 14-1.07 and these rules and regulations.

b. If a child has been suspended due to the physical danger to himself or herself, other students, faculty, or school property caused by the child's continued presence, the local school district shall be

THE ESTABLISHMENT AND ADMINISTRATION OF SPECIAL EDUCATION

ARTICLE III

Each local school district shall establish and maintain special education instructional programs, resource programs, and related services which meet the educational needs of children with the following exceptional characteristics:

a. Auditory, visual, physical, or health impairment.
b. Speech or language impairment.
c. Deficits in the essential learning processes of perception, conceptualization, memory, attention, or motor control.
d. Deficits in intellectual development and mental capacity.
e. Educational maladjustment related to social or cultural circumstances.
f. Affective disorders or adaptive behavior which restricts effective functioning.

Special education instructional programs, resource programs, and related services shall range along a continuum based on the nature and degree of the intervention. This continuum of program options shall include, but not be limited to:

1. Standard Program with Modification--The child receives his/her basic educational experience through the standard program. However, these experiences are modified through:

a. Additional or specialized education from the teacher
b. Consultation to and with the teacher
c. Provision of special equipment and materials
d. Modification in the instructional program (e.g., multi-age placement, expectations, grading, etc.)

2. Alternate Standard Program--The child receives his or her basic educational experiences in a standard program whose curricular content and educational methodology have been substantially changed. Such changes shall occur when the special education needs of a proportionately large, identifiable segment of the school population are not otherwise being met.
3. Standard or Alternate Standard Program with Resource Programs or Related Services--The child receives his or her basic educational experiences through the standard, or alternate standard, program. However, these experiences are augmented by one or more resource programs or related services.

4. Special Program--The child receives most of his or her basic educational experience through an instructional program in a special class, which is largely self-contained, or in a special school.
   a. Inclusion in those parts of the standard program which are appropriate.
   b. Provision of related services as needed.

5. Cooperative Program--The child receives most of his or her educational experiences through either the standard or the special program of the public school. However, this is supplemented through work-experience programs or shared agency involvement.

6. Home and Hospital Program--The child who is eligible for either standard or the special program, but who is unable to attend such programs, receives instructional or resource programs or related services in his or her home or in the hospital.

7. State-Operated or Private Program--The child whose exceptional characteristics are so profound or complex that no special education program offered by the public schools can adequately or appropriately meet his or her needs is referred to either a state-operated or a private facility.

3.03 Special education instructional programs, resource programs, and related services, including diagnostic services, shall be available to exceptional children who are between the ages of three and twenty-one and who are enrolled in the local school district.

1. When an exceptional child becomes three years old, the child shall be eligible for special education services, including private placement if required, at any time thereafter.

2. An exceptional child who requires continued public school educational experience to facilitate his or her integration into society shall be considered eligible for such services until age twenty-one or upon successful completion of the secondary program. The child who becomes twenty-one during the school year shall be allowed to complete that year.

3. An exceptional child who has satisfactorily completed a secondary program and has been assisted in locating further educational and vocational experience as necessary shall be granted a diploma. Both parents and the student shall be made aware that eligibility for the public school special education services is terminated following the granting of a diploma and that the parents may request a review of the recommendation for graduation.
3.04  Each local school district shall ensure that to the maximum extent appropriate, handicapped children, including children in public or private institutions or other care facilities, are educated with children who are not handicapped, and that special classes, separate schooling or other removal of handicapped children from the regular educational environment occurs only when the nature or severity of the handicap is such that education in regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services cannot be achieved satisfactorily.

3.05  Facilities used for special education programs and services shall be appropriate to, and adequate for, the specific program or service. Such facilities shall be at least equal to those provided to the students in the standard program.

3.06  Written policies shall be developed by the local school district concerning the method by which information concerning a student will be collected, the confidential nature of that information, the use to which it will be put, recorded and maintained, the period for which it will be maintained, the persons to whom it will be available and under what circumstances. All such policies shall be consistent with: 1) The Illinois School Student Records Act; 2) Rules and Regulations to Govern School Student Records; and 3) SBE-1, The Illinois Program for Evaluation, Supervision, and Recognition of Schools.

1. Such policies shall provide that all information maintained concerning a student receiving special education services be directly related to the provision of services to that child.

2. These policies shall be made known to the parents or guardians of all students receiving special education services, and shall be available to the public.

3.07  The establishment and operation of all special education programs and services shall be under the coordination and educational direction of a state-approved director of special education. Such director refers to an individual functioning in that capacity whose credentials have been approved by the State Board of Education.

3.08  All special education programs and services shall be provided with state-approved supervisory services, specific to the nature of the program or service. Supervisory personnel shall provide consultation to and coordination of special education programs and services.

3.09  Within each local school or district, the building principal or other designated local district administrator shall, in cooperation with special education administrative and supervisory personnel, facilitate the functioning of special education instructional and resource programs and related services as an integral part of the school program.
The specific responsibilities of special education administrative and supervisory personnel and local district administrative personnel in relation to special education instructional and resource programs and related services shall be delineated in writing and made known to all persons involved.

Special education programs and services which would not comply with these Rules and Regulations to Govern the Administration and Operation of Special Education shall require written approval from the Illinois Office of Education prior to the implementation of the program or service. Factors to be taken into consideration shall include but are not limited to: student exceptional characteristics, class size, staff qualifications, physical plant and evaluation plan.

SPECIAL EDUCATION INSTRUCTIONAL PROGRAMS AND RESOURCE PROGRAMS

ARTICLE IV

Special education instructional programs shall be designated in direct response to the educational needs of exceptional children.

1. Specific types of instructional programs may be formulated according to common exceptional characteristics of the students, or, for students with differing exceptional characteristics:

   a. Instructional programs formulated according to common exceptional characteristics of the students shall be in accord with those characteristics described in rule 9.16
   b. Instructional programs which group students with differing exceptional characteristics shall be formulated only under when the following circumstances:

       (1) The students are grouped in relation to a common educational need, or
       (2) The program can be completely individualized, and
       (3) The teacher is qualified to plan and provide an appropriate educational program for each student in the group.

2. Student-based objectives shall be developed for each type of special education instructional program.

The principle determinants of the number of students served in each special education instructional program shall be the age of the students, the nature and severity of their exceptional characteristics, and the degree of intervention necessary. All exceptions to the following program size limitations shall require the written approval of the Illinois Office of Education prior to the implementation of the program.

1. Early childhood instructional programs shall have a maximum ratio of one (1) qualified teacher to five (5) students in attendance at any one given time; total enrollment shall be limited according to the needs of the students for individualized programming.

2. Instructional programs which primarily serve children whose exceptional characteristics are either profound in degree or multiple in nature shall have a maximum enrollment of five (5) students.

3. Instructional programs which primarily serve children whose principle exceptional characteristics are severe visual, auditory, physical, speech or language impairments, or behavioral disorders shall have a maximum enrollment of eight (8) students.

7. The local school district may increase the enrollment in a special education instructional program by a maximum of two (2) additional students to meet unique circumstances which occur during the school year. Such additions may be made only when the educational needs of all students who would be enrolled in the expanded program can be adequately and appropriately met, or, the school district may increase the enrollment in a special education instructional program by a maximum of five (5) additional students when the program is provided with a full-time, non-certified assistant.

8. When the district wishes to exceed the maximum enrollments indicated above, approval shall be requested in writing to the Illinois Office of Education, Department of Specialized Educational Services. The request shall include a rationale for the proposed enrollment variation and a plan for its evaluation. If the request for an enrollment deviation is denied, the district may appeal the decision to the State Superintendent of Education.

4.05 Integration into a standard program of a student enrolled in a special education instructional program shall be determined in relation to the individual objectives established for the student. When a student is integrated into a standard educational program from a special program, the special teacher of that student shall be responsible for intensive coordination with the standard program teacher.

4.06 Special education resource programs shall be designed in direct response to the educational needs of exceptional children.

1. Resource programs shall be provided to exceptional children whose educational needs can be adequately met through part-time instruction by a special education teacher. The home or hospital program shall consist of appropriate special education and related services which are provided by the school to a child in his or her home or in a hospital.
7.02 The home and hospital program shall be provided:

1. To any child with a health or physical impairment which, in the opinion of a licensed medical examiner, will cause an absence from school for more than two consecutive weeks, and who school personnel determine can educationally benefit from such a program.

STATE OPERATED OR PRIVATE PROGRAMS

ARTICLE VIII

8.01 If a child exhibits exceptional characteristics which are determined in a multidisciplinary conference to be so profound, complex, or otherwise unique that no special education program offered by the public schools can adequately or appropriately meet his or her needs, the student shall be referred for placement in either a state-operated or a private facility.

8.02 The availability of community resources as an extension of the public school education program in no way relieves the local district of its responsibility to provide a comprehensive program of special education nor of its responsibility to the individual student.

8.03 When a multidisciplinary conference determines that a child cannot be provided with an education in the public schools, appropriate school personnel shall meet with the parents of the child, and representatives of the nonpublic school to develop an IEP in accordance with these rules and regulations prior to placement. If the representative cannot attend, the local school district shall use other methods to insure participation by the private school.

8.04 The district shall be responsible for locating an appropriate state-operated or private program and for facilitating the referral to that program. An appropriate program is one which will provide the child with special education experiences which are both adequate and appropriate to the student's needs.

1. With the exception of emergency psychiatric placements which include an educational component, the decision to place the child in a private facility shall precede such placement and shall be made by the local school district and the state-approved director of special education. Placements made by parents in violation of this regulation shall not be approved for reimbursement unless the multidisciplinary conference recommends and the board or state-approved director of special education, if designated, decides that an appropriate program cannot be provided within the public schools, and is sufficiently knowledgeable of the proposed private facility to be assured that the program to be provided will be appropriate to the student's needs.

2. When the multidisciplinary conference, the parents of the child, and the state-approved director of special education determines that a nondistrict residential or day educational program is indicated, the district shall consult the representatives of the appropriate state agency to determine whether a state-operated program is available and/or is appropriate to the child's needs. State-operated programs, when available, should be given first consideration; however, the district shall recommend referral of the child to the agency or facility which is most appropriate to the individual situation. Consideration shall be given to the proximity of the child's home.
3. Dual placement in a private school and a public school utilizing the provisions of Section 14-7.02 of The School Code of Illinois shall be approved only when the child is being reintegrated into the public school program or when the student over the age of 16 receives part-time pre-vocational training in an appropriate private program.

4. If for any reason the recommended placement cannot be achieved, the district shall provide an alternate educational plan.

8.05 When a private facility is utilized, the local district shall be responsible for payment of tuition and provision of transportation as provided by law. (See Illinois Revised Statutes, 1975, Chapter 122, Section 14-7.02).

1. All such private placements shall be approved by the Illinois Office of Education.

2. Approval of the recommended placement shall be contingent upon the following criteria:
   a. The child is enrolled in the public school
   b. The local district special education program is in compliance with Article XIV of The School Code of Illinois
   c. The facility's program is appropriate in relation to the needs of the individual child
   d. The facility is licensed by the State of Illinois or appropriate agency of the state in which the facility is located
   e. The facility is registered with the Illinois Office of Education and meets the standards established by that office
   f. The facility is within the United States
   g. The facility provides an educational program for at least 176 days per year.

3. A school district which has been denied approval for the placement of a child in a private facility cannot independently place the child and provide the tuition.

8.06 All private facility placements shall be reapproved by the Illinois Office of Education on an annual basis.

8.07 If the recommended private school placement is approved, the local district and the private facility shall enter into an agreement utilizing a format provided by the Illinois Office of Education. The agreement shall provide for, but not be limited to:

1. The child's IEP.

2. The tuition cost.

3. Periodic progress reports on the child from the private facility to be submitted at least annually.
4. Acceptance that the special education staff of the placing school district may inspect the private facility and confer with the staff at reasonable times.

5. Assurances that this placement is at no cost to parents in accordance with Section 14-7.02 of The School Code of Illinois.

The local school district shall maintain a record of supportive data on each child placed in a private facility. This data will include:
1. A summary of the child's individual problems.
2. A description of the program required by the child.
3. An explanation of why the child's needs cannot be met by the public school.
4. The description of the special education program offered by the private facility.
5. The request for placement of the child in a private facility as approved by the Illinois Office of Education.
6. Copy of the agreement with the facility.
7. Conference reports and periodic progress reports submitted by the private facility.
8. An annual reassessment of the need for continued private placement.

8.09
When a state-operated or private day program is utilized, the local district shall provide transportation for the children in this program. Other services may be provided as mutually agreed between the district and the state-operated or private facility.

The local school district shall be expected to follow the progress of those children placed in a state-operated or private program. Public school personnel shall communicate at least annually with private or state facility person-nels to evaluate the child's progress and, as appropriate, facilitate the child's return to the public school program.

8.11
Transportation to a residential school shall be provided at least once, round trip, each school year.
IDENTIFICATION, EVALUATION, AND PLACEMENT OF EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN

ARTICLE IX

9.01 Each local district shall develop and implement procedures for creating public awareness of special education programs and for advising the public of the rights of exceptional children.

1. All such procedures shall assure that information regarding special education programs and the rights of exceptional children is made available in each of the major languages represented in the district and in phrases which will be understandable to parents, regardless of ethnic or cultural background, or hearing or visual abilities.

2. Procedures developed by the district to create public awareness of special education programs and for advising the public of the rights of exceptional children shall include, but need not be limited to:
   a. Annual notification to all parents in the district regarding the special education programs and services available in or through that district and of their rights to receive, upon request, a copy of these rules and regulations.
   b. An annual dissemination of information to the community served by the school district regarding the special education program and services available in or through the district and the rights of exceptional children.

3. Documentation, including examples as appropriate, of the district's efforts to create public awareness of special education programs and inform parents of the rights of exceptional children shall be maintained in the district files.

9.02 Each local school district shall be responsible for actively seeking out and identifying all exceptional children in the district who are between the ages of 3 and 21. Procedures developed to fulfill this responsibility shall include but not be limited to:

1. An annual screening of children between the ages of 3 and 5, to identify those who may need special education.

2. Hearing and vision screening at regular intervals during the child's school career (see Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 23, Paragraphs 2331 through 2337, and Chapter 122, Section 27-8).

3. Speech and language screening of each child upon initial enrollment in a public school district in Illinois.

4. Annual screening by teachers and other professional personnel, for referral of those children who exhibit problems which interfere with their educational progress and/or their adjustment to the educational setting.
Procedures may include coordination with local and state service agencies and existing parent groups.

When a child is identified through the screening process, or exhibits problems which interfere with the child's educational progress and/or adjustment to the educational setting, or when there is reason to believe that a child may require special education services, the child shall be referred for a case study evaluation.

Each local school district shall develop, and make known to all concerned persons, procedures by which a case study evaluation of a child may be requested. These procedures shall:

a. Designate the steps to be taken in making a referral
b. Designate the person to whom a referral shall be made
c. Indicate the information which should be provided.

Referrals may be made by school district personnel, the parents of the child, community service agencies, persons having primary care and custody of the child, other professional persons having knowledge of the child's problems, the child or the Illinois Office of Education.

The local school district shall be responsible for determining the appropriateness of the referral, deciding what further action should be taken, and initiating the necessary procedures.

a. To determine whether the referred child requires a formal case study evaluation, the local school district may conduct preliminary evaluative procedures such as observation of the child, assessment for instructional purposes, consultation with the teacher or the referring agent if it is someone other than a teacher, or a conference with the child.

b. When the referral has been made by a professional staff member of the local school district, by the child's parents or by the child, the district shall be responsible for informing the person making the referral regarding its decision to conduct or not to conduct a case study evaluation. If the district decides not to conduct a case study evaluation of a child for whom such an evaluation has been requested, the information provided to the referring party shall contain, subject to the Illinois School Student Records Act and the Rules and Regulations to Govern School Student Records, the reasons for that decision.

c. If the parents of the child, other persons having primary care and custody of the child or the child initiated a referral for a case study evaluation which the district refuses or fails to conduct, the parents, other persons having primary care and custody of the child, or the child may appeal this decision in an impartial due process hearing.
d. When the district decides not to conduct a case study evaluation, the parents shall be notified, in writing, of the following:

(1) The date of the referral and the reasons the case study evaluation was requested
(2) The reasons the district has decided not to conduct a case study evaluation.

9.04 Parents or guardians of an exceptional child must be notified in writing when the local school district proposes to initiate or change the identification, evaluation or educational placement of the child or the lack of a provision of a free appropriate public education to the child.

1. The notice shall be:

a. Written in language understandable to the general public, and

b. Provided in the native language of the parent or other mode of communication used by the parents, unless it is clearly not feasible to do so.

c. If the native language or other mode of communication of the parent is not a written language, the local school district shall insure:

(1) That the notice is translated orally or by other means to the parent in his or her native language or other mode of communication,

(2) That the parent understands the content of the notice, and

(3) That there is written evidence on file that the requirements of these regulations have been met.

2. The notice shall contain:

a. A full explanation of all of the procedural safeguards available to the parents, including the availability upon request of a list of free or low cost legal and other relevant services available locally to assist parents in initiating an impartial due process hearing;

b. A description of the action proposed or refused by the local school district, an explanation of why that district proposes or refuses to take the action, and a description of any options that district considered and the reasons why those options were rejected;

c. A description of each evaluation procedure, test, record, or report that district uses as a basis for the proposal or refusal; and

d. A description of any other factors which are relevant to that district's proposal or refusal.
Parental consent shall be obtained before:

1. Conducting any case study evaluation or reevaluation of the child
2. Initial placement of an exceptional child in a program providing special education and related services.

If the parents object to a proposed case study evaluation by refusing to sign consent, and such objection is not resolved by a conference with the parents, the district may request an impartial due process hearing.

Before a child is given a case study evaluation, the local school district shall be responsible for determining the child's language use pattern, mode of communication, and cultural background.

1. Determination of the child's language use pattern and cultural background shall be made by determining the language(s) spoken in the child's home and the language(s) used most comfortably and frequently by the child.

2. Determination of the child's mode of communication shall be made by assessing the extent to which the child uses expressive language and the use he or she makes of other modes of communication (e.g., gestures, signing, unstructured sounds) as a substitute for expressive language.

3. The child's language use pattern, proficiency in English, mode of communication and cultural background shall be noted in the child's temporary student records.

The child shall be given a case study evaluation appropriate to the nature of the problems which caused the referral. The intensity of the evaluation procedures shall be determined by the complexity of the child's problems and the amount of information necessary to understand those problems and develop the IEP in accordance with Articles 9.13, 9.14, 9.15 and 9.18a.

1. For the child who requires special education placement at home or in a hospital because of a temporary physical or health impairment, estimated to last six months or less, a homebound services case study evaluation shall be conducted, and an IEP developed. This evaluation shall include, but need not be limited to:

a. Evaluation of the physical or health impairment by a licensed medical physician, for diagnostic and evaluative purposes.

b. Estimation by the physician of the time the child will require homebound services.

c. A review of the child's current educational status and academic needs.
2. For the child whose problems seem to be limited to the area of speech or language, a speech and language case study evaluation shall be conducted and an IEP developed. This evaluation shall include, but need not be limited to:

a. A hearing screening completed at the time of the evaluation or within the previous six months.

b. A review of the child's medical history and current health status.

c. A review of the child's academic history and current educational functioning.

d. An assessment of the child's speech and language by a certified speech and language clinician.

e. An interview with the child.

The speech or language impaired child with additional handicapping conditions or educational deficits shall be referred for further evaluation.

3. For all other children, a comprehensive case study evaluation shall be conducted. This evaluation shall include, but need not be limited to:

a. An interview with the child.

b. Consultation with the child's parents.

c. A social developmental study, including an assessment of the child's adaptive behavior and cultural background.

d. A report regarding the child's medical history and current health status.

e. A vision and hearing screening, completed at the time of the evaluation or within the previous six months.

f. A review of the child's academic history and current educational functioning.

g. An educational evaluation of the child's learning processes and level of educational achievement.

h. An assessment of the child's learning environment.

i. Specialized evaluations specific to the nature of the child's problems.

(1) A psychological evaluation by a certified school psychologist, with the extent to be determined by the individual situation, shall be required:

(a) In order to place any child in a special education placement for children with mental impairment (See Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 122, Section 14-8.01)
(b) In order to place any child in a special education instructional program

(c) In order to place any child in a special education placement for children with behavior disorders

(d) In order to place any child where there are questions about his or her intellectual functioning and/or learning capacity.

A psychological evaluation for all other children shall be considered optional.

As appropriate, the psychologist may limit this evaluation to a review of the results of tests administered by other school district personnel and/or the results of externally administered evaluations, an analysis of the learning environment and learning processes, participation in the multidisciplinary conference and such other procedures as deemed necessary.

(2) An appropriate medical examination by a physician licensed to practice medicine in all of its branches shall be obtained, for diagnostic and evaluative purposes, for any child with either a suspected physical, health, vision or hearing impairment. This examination shall be conducted at no cost to the parent. Nothing in these regulations shall be construed to require any child to undergo any physical examinations or medical treatment whose parents or guardian object thereto on the grounds that such examinations or treatment conflicts with his or her religious beliefs.

(3) A certified speech and language clinician shall administer a comprehensive evaluation for any child suspected of having a speech or language impairment.

(4) For all children other specialized evaluations appropriate to the nature of the child's problems shall be provided at no cost to the parents.

(a) When specialized evaluation procedures not usually provided by the local school district are required to provide a better understanding of the child's educational or educationally related problems, the local school district recommending such evaluation procedures shall be responsible for assisting the parents in locating and making use of appropriate local and/or state resources.

(1) Consideration shall be given to resources of state agencies or third party payors.

(2) The child may not be prohibited from receiving a special education program or service because he or she is financially or otherwise unable to obtain specialized evaluation procedures.

- 27 -
(5) An audiological evaluation appropriate to the needs of the child shall be provided by an audiologist when necessary.

(6) If the parent disagrees with an evaluation obtained by the local school district, the district shall inform the parent of the opportunity to obtain an independent evaluation at public expense.

(a) In such cases, the local district may initiate an impartial due process hearing prior to such independent evaluation to demonstrate that the district's evaluation is appropriate.

(b) If the final decision is that the local district's evaluation is appropriate, the parent shall have the right to an independent evaluation, but not at public expense.

If all requirements for the case study evaluation cannot be fulfilled, due to lack of parental involvement, religious convictions of the family, or inability of the child to participate in an evaluative procedure, the district shall note the missing component(s) in the child's temporary student records and give the reason(s) it could not be provided.

Each case study evaluation shall be conducted so as to assure that it is linguistically, culturally, racially, and sexually nondiscriminatory.

1. The language(s) used to evaluate a child shall be consistent with the child's language use pattern. (See Rule 9.08) If the language use pattern involves two or more languages, the child shall be evaluated using each of the languages used by the child.

2. Psychological evaluation of a child shall be performed by a certified school psychologist who has demonstrated competencies in, and knowledge of, the language and culture of the child.

a. If documented efforts to locate and secure services from such a psychologist are unsuccessful, the district may employ a qualified psychologist who has demonstrated competencies in, and knowledge of, the language and culture of the child; this person may act as a consultant to the district's certified school psychologist performing the evaluation.

b. The district having exhausted all other alternatives and not securing the services of either a certified school psychologist or a qualified psychologist who has demonstrated competencies in, and knowledge of, the language and culture of the child, the certified school psychologist regularly employed by the district shall conduct assessment procedures which do not depend upon language, or utilize the services of an interpreter. Any special education placement resulting from such alternative procedures shall be reviewed at regular intervals until the child acquires a predominantly English language use pattern which will assure that a psychological evaluation given by a certified school psychologist will not be discriminatory or until the need for special education is substantially verified.

3. Tests given to a child whose primary language is other than English shall be relevant, to the maximum extent possible, to his or her culture.

4. If the child's receptive and/or expressive communication skills are impaired due to hearing and/or language deficits, the district shall utilize test instruments and procedures which do not stress spoken language and one of the following:
   a. Visual communication techniques in addition to auditory techniques
   b. An interpreter to assist the evaluative personnel with language and testing.

5. Each local district shall insure that testing and evaluation materials and procedures used for evaluation and placement of exceptional children must be selected and administered so as not to be racially or culturally discriminatory.

6. Each local district shall insure that:
   a. Tests and other evaluation materials:
      (1) Are provided and administered in the child's native language or other mode of communication, unless it is clearly not feasible to do so;
      (2) Have been validated for the specific purpose for which they are used; and
      (3) Are administered by trained personnel (e.g., certified school psychologists) in conformance with the instructions provided by their producer.
   b. Tests and other evaluation materials include those tailored to assess specific areas of educational need and not merely those which are designed to provide a single general intelligence quotient.
   c. When tests are administered to a child with impaired sensory, motor or communication skills, tests shall be selected and administered to ensure that the results accurately reflect the child's aptitude or achievement level rather than reflecting the child's impaired sensory, motor or communication skills except where those skills are the factors which the test(s) purports to measure.
   d. No single procedure is used as the sole criterion for determining an appropriate educational program for a child; and
   e. The evaluation is made by a multidisciplinary team, including at least one teacher or other specialist with knowledge in the area of the suspected disability. For the child suspected of having specific learning disabilities, the following additional team members must also be included: the child's regular teacher; or if the child does not have a regular teacher, a regular classroom teacher certified to teach a child of his or her age; or for a child of less than school age, an individual qualified to teach a child of his or her age.

f. The child is assessed in all areas related to the suspected disability, including, where appropriate, health, vision, hearing, social and emotional status, general intelligence, academic performance, communicative status, and motor abilities.

In those instances in which a child has been evaluated by qualified professional personnel outside the school district, that evaluation shall be considered and may be utilized in determining eligibility and need for special education placement.

Upon completion of a homebound services case study evaluation (See Rule 9.09.1) the local district superintendent or designee shall determine the child's eligibility for homebound special education placement and recommend an appropriate placement. (See Article VII) A report regarding these recommendations and all documentation upon which they were based shall be placed in the child's temporary student records.

Upon completion of a speech and language case study evaluation (See Rule 9.09.2) the speech and language clinician shall review the findings, determine the child's eligibility and need for speech and language services, and convene a conference for the purpose of developing the child's IEP as described in Article 9.18a of these regulations. Following the IEP meeting, the speech and language clinician shall make recommendations to the local district superintendent or designee for appropriate placement.

1. A speech and language impaired child exhibiting additional problems shall be referred for further evaluation.

2. A report of these findings and recommendations shall be placed in the child's temporary student records.

Upon completion of a comprehensive case study evaluation (See Rule 9.09.3) one or more conferences shall be convened for the purpose of formulating program and service options. This may or may not be the conference at which the IEP is developed. If not, an additional meeting is to be held, in accordance with Article 9.18a.

1. Participants in the conferences shall include appropriate representatives of the child's local district of residence; the special education director or designee who is qualified to provide or supervise the provision of special education; all those school personnel involved in the evaluation of the child; the parent(s); other persons having significant information regarding the child; and those persons who may become responsible for providing the special education program or service to the child; the child, where appropriate, and other individuals at the discretion of the parent or local district.

2. The purposes of the above conference(s) shall be to:
   a. Establish a composite understanding of the child's learning characteristics, sensory and motor skills, and behaviors.
   b. Determine eligibility for special education programs and/or services.
   c. Determine the child's unique educational needs and the extent to which these needs can be met by the standard program.
   d. Determine the nature and degree of special education intervention which is needed, and recommend corresponding placement which is least restrictive of interaction with nonhandicapped children.

3. If the above conference is also used for the development of the IEP, then the components of Article 9.18a of these regulations shall be followed.

Eligibility for special education programs and services shall be determined by the presence of one or more of the following exceptional characteristics:

1. Visual impairment - The child's visual impairment is such that the child cannot develop his or her educational potential without special services and materials. (For reference, see 14-1.02 of The School Code of Illinois)

2. Hearing impairment - The child's residual hearing is not sufficient to enable him or her to understand the spoken word and to develop language, thus causing extreme deprivation in learning and communication. Or the child exhibits a hearing loss which prevents full awareness of environmental sounds and spoken language, limiting normal language acquisition and learning achievement. (For reference, see 14.1.02 of The School Code of Illinois)

3. Physical and health impairment - The child exhibits a physical or health impairment, either temporary or permanent, which interferes with his or her learning and/or which requires adaptation of the physical plant. (For reference, see 14-1.02 of The School Code of Illinois)

4. Speech and/or language impairment - The child exhibits deviations of speech and/or language processes which are outside the range of acceptable deviation within a given environment and which prevent full social or educational development. (For reference, see 14-1.08 of The School Code of Illinois)

5. Specific learning disability - The child exhibits a disorder in one or more of the basic psychological processes involved in understanding or in using language, spoken or written, which may manifest itself in an imperfect ability to listen, think, speak, read, write, spell, or to do mathematical calculations. Such term includes conditions as perceptual handicaps, brain injury, minimal brain dysfunction, dyslexia, and developmental aphasia. The term does not include children who have learning problems which are primarily the result of visual, hearing, or motor handicaps, of mental retardation, of emotional disturbance, or of environmental, cultural, or economic disadvantage.

6. Education handicap - The child exhibits educational maladjustment related to social or cultural circumstances. (For reference, see 14-1.03 of The School Code of Illinois)

7. Behavior disorder - The child exhibits an affective disorder and/or adaptive behavior which significantly interferes with his or her learning and/or social functioning. (For reference, see 14-1.03 of The School Code of Illinois)

8. Mental impairment - The child's intellectual development, mental capacity, adaptive behavior, and academic achievement are markedly delayed. Such mental impairment may be mild/moderate, severe, or profound. (For reference, see 14-1.04 and 14-1.05 of The School Code of Illinois)

9. Multiple impairment - The child exhibits two or more impairments, severe in nature or total impact, which significantly affect his or her ability to benefit from the educational program. (For reference, see 14-1.07 or The School Code of Illinois)

Recommendations made at the multidisciplinary conference shall be determined by consensus of the participating public school personnel; if an agreement cannot be reached, additional information shall be obtained. In considering a child with mental impairment, a certified school psychologist must concur with the child's eligibility based on the results of a psychological evaluation.

1. Recommendations for special education placement shall be based on the following:

a. The child shall be placed in the educational program which is approriate to the student's needs and least restrictive of the interaction with nonhandicapped children.

b. The special education placement must be based on the child's IEP, and located as close as possible to the child's home.

c. Unless a handicapped child's IEP requires some other arrangement, the child must be educated in the school which he or she would attend if not handicapped.

d. Consideration must be given to any potentially harmful effect on the child, on the quality of services which he or she needs, or that which impedes the education of other students in the environment.
2. The proposed placement shall be consistent with the findings of the case study evaluation and the established eligibility of the child.

A written report of the results and recommendations of the multidisciplinary conference shall be prepared.

1. The conference report shall be dated, and list the names of all those in attendance at the conference.

2. A copy of the conference report, together with all documentation upon which it is based, shall be kept on file by the local school district. The parents shall be informed of their rights to access of the report.

If the initial multidisciplinary conference was held for the purpose of formulating a placement recommendation, an additional meeting or meetings must be held for the purpose of developing the exceptional child's IEP. Each local district must be responsible for initiating and conducting one or more meetings for the purpose of developing, reviewing and revising the IEP. The meeting at which an exceptional child's IEP is developed must be held within thirty (30) calendar days of a determination that the child needs special education and related services.

1. Parents of an exceptional child must be notified of the meeting to develop, review, and revise an exceptional child's IEP. The local school district must take steps to insure that the parents of an exceptional child are present at each meeting or are afforded the opportunity to participate, including:

   a. Notifying parents of the meeting early enough to insure that they will have an opportunity to attend; and

   b. Scheduling the meeting at a mutually agreed on time and place.

   c. The notice must indicate the purpose, time and location of the meeting, and who will be in attendance.

2. The following participants must be included in the IEP meeting:

   a. A representative of the local district, other than the child's teacher, who is qualified to provide, or supervise the provision of special education (e.g., the state-approved special education director or designee).

   b. The child's teacher. Teacher organization representatives may not attend without parental and district consent.

   c. One or both of the child's parents or guardians.

   (1) If neither parent can attend, the local district shall use other methods to insure parent participation, including individual or conference telephone calls.
(2) A meeting may be conducted without a parent in attendance if the local district is unable to convince the parents that they should attend. In this case the local district must have a record of its attempts to arrange a mutually agreed on time and place such as:

(a) Detailed records of telephone calls made or attempted and the results of those calls.

(b) Copies of correspondence sent to the parents and any responses received, and

(c) Detailed records of visits made at the parent's home or place of employment and the results of those visits.

d. The child, where appropriate.

e. Other individuals at the discretion of the parent or local district.

3. For an exceptional child who has been evaluated for the first time, the local district shall insure that a member of the evaluation team participates in the meeting or that the representative of the local district, the child's teacher, or some other person who is knowledgeable about the evaluation procedures used with the child and is familiar with the results of the evaluation, participates in the meeting, as well as an interpreter for the deaf if necessary.

4. The IEP shall include, but is not limited to, the following:

a. A statement of the child's present levels of educational performance;

b. A statement of annual goals, including short-term instructional objectives;

c. A statement of the specific special education and related services to be provided to the child, and the extent to which the child will be able to participate in regular educational programs;

d. The projected dates for initiation of services and the anticipated duration of the services; and

e. Appropriate objective criteria and evaluation procedures and schedules for determining, on at least an annual basis, whether the short-term instructional objectives are being achieved.

5. The local district shall give the parent, on request, a copy of the exceptional child's IEP.

6. Following the determination of the child's IEP, parents shall be afforded, on an ongoing basis, reasonable opportunity for comment on and input into their child's educational program.
The local school board has the authority to place students in special education programs. The board may also authorize, by regulation, that the director of special education place students in special education programs. (See Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 122, Section 10-22.41)

The case study evaluation and multidisciplinary conference shall be completed within sixty (60) school days of the date of referral or the date of application for admittance to the public school by the parents of the child. (See Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 122, Section 14-8.01)

At least ten (10) calendar days prior to the actual placement of the child, the parents shall be notified, in writing, of the following:

1. The results of the case study evaluation.
2. The nature of the special education program or service needed by the child.
3. The recommendations for placement and the plan for implementing those recommendations.
4. Their right to object to the proposed placement and the specific procedures in making such an objection, including the procedures for requesting an impartial due process hearing.

Record of such notice shall be entered in the child's temporary student record.

If the parents consent to the proposed placement and waive the ten (10) calendar day interval before placement, the child shall be placed in the recommended program as soon as practicable.

If the parents object to the proposed placement within ten (10) calendar days of their receipt of notification of the proposed placement, they shall contact the local district, indicating their objection. The district shall then arrange a conference with the parents in an attempt to resolve the disagreement on placement. If the parents continue to object, they may appeal the proposed placement by requesting an impartial due process hearing. That request shall be made in writing to the superintendent of the local school district.

1. Receipt of a request for an impartial due process hearing shall cause the district to postpone its proposed placement of the child until the matter is resolved.
2. The child shall remain in his or her current educational placement, unless a mutual agreement is reached between the parents and local school district, until the placement issue is resolved.
If the child is receiving no educational service and the parents are seeking initial placement in a public school, the child, with the consent of the parents, must be placed in the public school program until the completion of all the proceedings.

Special education placement shall be made as soon as possible after the determination of eligibility and need for such placement but in no case shall placement occur later than the beginning of the next school semester. (See Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 122, Section 14-8.01)

1. When special education placement is not possible prior to the next school semester, the local school district shall be responsible for providing interim services between placement determination and actual placement which are as appropriate to the child's needs as possible.

2. The local school district shall provide written notification to the parents of the child and the State Superintendent of Education regarding the nature of the services the child will receive in the interim. Written verification of the provision of these services shall be kept in the child's temporary student record.

In addition to initial placement conferences and/or IEP meetings, the educational status and continued special education placement of each child shall be reviewed at least annually in a conference attended by those professional persons working with the student, the parents, the child where appropriate, the special education director or designee who is qualified to supervise the provision of special education, and other individuals at the discretion of the parent or local district.

1. Utilizing appropriate evaluation information, including teacher and parent opinions, the annual review shall determine the extent to which the child has met the objectives and goals as specified in the child's IEP and recommend further evaluation or revise the child's IEP.

2. When further evaluation is indicated, pursuant to the annual review, a review of the child's status as requested by the teachers, parents, other knowledgeable persons, or as a result of an impartial due process hearing, such an evaluation shall be completed within sixty (60) school days of the request.

3. A reevaluation of the child shall be conducted every three years or more frequently if conditions warrant or if the child's parent or teacher requests an evaluation.

Notification to parents regarding continuation, change, reevaluation, or termination of placement shall inform the parents of their right to object and of the procedures to be followed to make such an objection.
Written notification regarding the continuation of the child's special education placement shall be provided to the parents of the child as soon as possible but not later than ten (10) calendar days prior to the beginning of each school year.

At least ten (10) calendar days prior to any major change in the educational placement of an exceptional child (excluding changes in levels, i.e., primary to intermediate), including those stated in rule 9.26, the parents shall be given written notification of the proposed change, including the reasons for the change and a description of the proposed program.

1. If the parents request an impartial due process hearing regarding a proposed change in the educational placement of their child, the district shall not change the placement until the matter is resolved.

2. If the parents agree to the proposed placement, then a meeting shall be held for the revision of the child's IEP.

Special education placement may be terminated only after a conference has been held, to which the child's parents have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to attend and participate. A complete review of the child's educational status shall be conducted at that conference, determining that such placement is no longer required, and that termination of the placement is in the best interests of the child, or that the child was inappropriately placed.

1. When the district decides to terminate a special education placement, the parents shall be notified at least ten (10) calendar days prior to such termination.

2. If the parents request termination of special education placement, the district shall review the child's educational status to determine whether the requested termination is in the best interests of the child. If, pursuant to this review, a continuation of the placement is recommended by the district, the parents may request an impartial due process hearing.

3. When the child's special education placement is terminated, a specific plan of transition, to include any provision of necessary related services and periodic followup, shall be developed and implemented.

IMPARTIAL DUE PROCESS HEARING

ARTICLE X

After informal procedures consistent with these rules and regulations have been exhausted, and there remain differences between the local school district and the parents or other persons having primary care and custody of the child, or the child, an impartial due process hearing may be requested.
1. A hearing may be requested by the parents, other persons having primary care and custody of the child, the child or the district regarding, but not limited to, the following:

   a. Objection to signing consent for a proposed case study evaluation or initial placement.

   b. Failure of the local school district, upon request of the parents, other persons having primary care and custody of the child, the child, or the Illinois Office of Education, to provide a case study evaluation.

   c. Failure of a local school district to consider evaluations completed by qualified professional personnel outside the school district.

   d. Objection to a proposed special education placement, either an initial placement, a continuation of a previous placement, or a major change in the placement.

   e. Termination of a special education placement.

   f. Failure of the local school district to provide a special education placement consistent with the finding of the case study evaluation and the recommendations of the multidisciplinary conference.

   g. Failure of the local school district to provide the least restrictive special education placement appropriate to the child's needs.

   h. Provision of special education instructional or resource programs, or related services in an amount insufficient to meet the child's needs.

   i. A suspension totalling individually or in aggregate ten (10) or more school days in a given school year of a child who is in a special education instructional or resource program or who receives special education related services.

   j. A suspension totalling individually or in aggregate ten (10) or more school days in a given school year of a child who is eligible for a special education instructional program or resource service but who has not been placed in such a program or provided such a service.

   k. Reasonable belief by the parents, other persons having primary care and custody of the child, or the child, that the child's suspension or expulsion resulted from behavior or a condition symptomatic of an exceptional characteristic as defined in the Illinois Revised Statutes, Chapter 122, Sections 14-1.02 through 14-1.07.

   l. Recommendation for the graduation of an exceptional child.

   m. Failure of the local school district to comply with any of these rules and regulations and/or The School Code of Illinois.
n. Failure of the local school district to provide an exceptional child with a free appropriate public education.

10.02 The local school district shall be responsible for informing parents in writing of their right to a hearing and of the procedures to follow to make a request for such a hearing. The director of special education shall assist the parents in taking whatever action is necessary to utilize the hearing process. The local school district shall inform the parent of any free or low cost legal and other relevant services available in the area if the parent requests the information or if the parent or local school district initiates a hearing.

10.03 A request for a hearing shall be made, in writing, to the superintendent of the local school district in which the child is a resident. Such a request shall contain the reasons the hearing is being requested and all other information pertinent to the request.

1. A request for a hearing or an appeal to the Illinois Office of Education may be made at any time significant different circumstances prevail; otherwise, a hearing may not be requested nor an appeal made more than once each calendar year.

2. Such a request shall be made in writing, within ten (10) calendar days of the parents' receipt of the written notification regarding the proposed placement. If the parents have not made a request within the ten (10) day period, the parent may request a hearing at a later date in accordance with the provisions of Article 10.01 of these regulations.

10.04 Within five (5) school days of the receipt of a request for a hearing, the local school district shall:

1. Send a certified letter to the Illinois Office of Education requesting the appointment of an impartial hearing officer. This letter shall include: the name, address, and telephone number of the child and parents and of the person making the request for the hearing, if it is someone other than the child or parents; the date on which the request for the hearing was received by the local school district; the nature of the controversy to be resolved; and the primary language spoken by the parents and the child.

2. Send to the person requesting the hearing, by certified mail, a copy of the letter sent to the Illinois Office of Education.

   a. If the hearing has been requested by someone other than the child's parents, the parents shall be informed of the request and invited to participate in the proceedings. Thereafter, unless the parents indicate that they do not wish to be informed and/or involved in the hearing process, all communication from the local school district, the hearing officer, and the Illinois Office of Education shall be directed to both the person requesting the hearing and the parents.
b. All references to parents made in the remainder of this Article shall be understood to include both the parents and the person requesting the hearing.

If the district decides not to honor the request for a hearing, the parents or guardian of the student shall be notified of this denial. Such notification shall be made in writing within five (5) calendar days of the receipt of the request and shall contain the reasons for the denial.

1. If the local district fails to notify the parents of their right to a hearing, as prescribed in these rules and regulations, or if the request for a hearing is denied either directly or by failure to provide such a hearing, the parent may appeal such a denial directly to the Illinois Office of Education.

2. In the event of a direct appeal to the Illinois Office of Education, the State Superintendent of Education shall order that a hearing be conducted at the local level, or order the district to perform such other measures as deemed necessary.

Within five (5) calendar days of its receipt of the request from the local school district, the Illinois Office of Education shall provide a list of five (5) prospective trained impartial hearing officers, one of which shall be selected as the impartial hearing officer to conduct the local hearing. Criteria for hearing officers are as follows:

1. Shall not be an employee of the Illinois Office of Education, the local school district, any joint agreement or cooperative program in which the district participates, or any other agency or organization that is directly involved in the diagnosis, education or care of the student or the State Board of Education.

2. Shall not be a resident of the district involved.

3. Shall not be involved in the decisions already made about a child regarding identification, evaluation, or placement, and may not have a personal or professional interest which would conflict with his or her objectivity.

4. Shall possess knowledge, information acquired through training under the auspices of the Illinois Office of Education, and/or experiences, about the nature and needs of exceptional children. An awareness and understanding of the types and quality of programs available for exceptional children is essential.

The Illinois Office of Education will pay expenses and a per diem to the hearing officer for his or her services at the local hearing.

10.06a
Selection of one hearing officer from the list shall occur within five (5) calendar days after receipt of the list from the Illinois Office of Education and shall occur as follows:
1. The parents shall first strike a name from the list.

2. The local school district shall next strike a name from the list.

3. Both parties shall continue striking from the list until one name remains; that person shall serve as the impartial hearing officer.

4. The local school district shall notify the Illinois Office of Education, within five (5) calendar days of receipt of the list, the name of the person to be the impartial hearing officer.

   a. This notification may be transmitted verbally to the Illinois Office of Education provided that the verbal notification is confirmed in writing, with verification by the local district and the parent/guardian, to the Illinois Office of Education with five (5) calendar days.

5. Upon receipt of the notification, the Illinois Office of Education shall appoint the hearing officer selected by the local district and the parent(s) to convene a hearing. If the selected hearing officer is unable or unwilling to accept the appointment the Illinois Office of Education shall seek from the local district and parent a mutually acceptable alternate. If the local district and parent are unable to agree to a mutually acceptable alternate, the Illinois Office of Education shall provide the local district and parent with an additional list of five prospective hearing officers. The local district and parent shall then repeat the selection process as detailed above.

6. The Illinois Office of Education shall maintain a list of those persons who serve as hearing officers, along with their qualifications.

The hearing shall not be considered adversary in nature, but shall be directed toward bringing out all facts necessary for the hearing officer to make a decision.

10.07
Within five (5) calendar days of his or her appointment, the hearing officer shall set the time and place for the hearing.

1. The hearing shall be held at a time and place reasonably convenient for both parties involved. However, it shall be scheduled not later than fifteen (15) calendar days after the appointment of the hearing officer, unless the hearing officer permits an extension of time due to extenuating circumstances, not to exceed fifteen (15) calendar days, unless both parties agree.

la. If the local district and parent cannot agree to a reasonably convenient time and place, the hearing officer shall make such a determination and proceed to schedule the hearing.

2. The Illinois Office of Education shall inform the parent by mail no later than five (5) calendar days prior to the hearing, that:
a. They or their designated representative shall have an opportunity to inspect all school records regarding the child and to obtain copies at their own expense prior to the hearing.

b. They may request an independent evaluation of their child prior to the hearing, at their own expense. The hearing officer may consider this request an extenuating circumstance and thereby authorize an extension of time for the hearing date, not to exceed thirty (30) calendar days, unless both parties agree.

c. They may require the attendance at the hearing of any school district employee or any other person who may have information relevant to the needs and abilities of the child, the proposed programs, or the status of the child. The hearing officer may issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of witnesses and, at the request of the parent or school board representatives, shall issue such subpoenas. The hearing officer may limit the number of witnesses to be subpoenaed in behalf of the parent or school board to not more than ten (10).

d. They may bring representatives, including legal counsel, agency representatives, or others, to the hearings at their own expense. These persons shall be given an opportunity to participate in the hearing process according to procedures established by the impartial hearing officer. The local school district shall maintain, on file, a list of independent evaluation sites, legal and other relevant services available in the area, and shall provide parents with the above information, upon request.

e. The educational status of the child will not be changed, pending the completion of the due process proceedings, unless the superintendent or designee decides that such change would be warranted due to immediate physical danger to the child or other persons. In such a case, the local school district shall be responsible for developing and implementing an appropriate interim placement.

f. Any party to the hearing has the right to prohibit the introduction of any evidence which has not been disclosed to that party at least five (5) calendar days prior to the hearing.

g. Either party may request that an interpreter be made available.

10.08 Parents involved in hearings have the right to have the child who is the subject of the hearing present, and open the hearing to the public.

10.09 The hearing officer shall conduct the hearing in a fair, impartial, and orderly manner.

1. At all stages of the hearing, the hearing officer shall require that interpreters be made available by the local school district for persons who are deaf or for persons whose normally spoken language is other than English.
2. At all stages of the hearing, the hearing officer shall assure that the parents are aware of and understand their rights and responsibilities in regard to this process.

3. The hearing officer shall have the authority to require additional information or evidence where he or she deems it necessary to make a complete record. He or she may recess the hearing for a specified period in order to obtain the additional information necessary.

4. The hearing officer may order an independent evaluation at local school district expense.

At any hearing which has been requested regarding the placement of a child, the hearing officer shall seek to establish the issues, allow the introduction of evidence which is relevant to those issues, and derive conclusions therefrom. These conclusions may include, but are not limited to the following:

1. That the child has needs which require special education intervention.

2. That the evaluation procedures utilized in determining the child's needs have been appropriate in nature and degree.

3. That the diagnostic profile of the child on which the placement recommendation was based is substantially verified.

4. That the proposed placement is directly related to the child's needs.

5. That the child's rights have been fully observed.

A hearing which has been requested regarding any other controversy shall seek to establish the issues as perceived by the prospective parties and the facts on which these issues depend.

10.11a
The local school district shall present evidence that the special education needs of the child have been appropriately identified and that the special education program and related services proposed to meet the needs of the child are adequate, appropriate and available.

10.12
The parents of the child, and the local school district or their respective representatives shall have a right to present testimony, cross-examine, and confront all witnesses at the hearing.

10.13
The rules of evidence shall not apply to the hearing process.

A record of the hearing proceedings shall be made by the local school district, either by a court reporter or by a tape recorder. The parents have a right to obtain a written or electronic verbatim record of the hearing, and to obtain written findings of fact and decisions. Additionally, the record of the hearing shall be part of the child's temporary record, and is governed by the Illinois School Students Records Act. The cost for such record shall be shared equally by the Illinois Office of Education and the local school district.

Within ten (10) calendar days after the conclusion of the hearing, the hearing officer shall render his or her decision, by certified mail, to the district, the parents, and the Illinois Office of Education.

1. The findings of fact and decision shall be in English and in the language normally spoken by the parents if it is other than English.
2. The Illinois Office of Education shall distribute the information in a nonpersonally identifiable form to the State Advisory Council on the Education of Handicapped Children.
3. The hearing officer's decision shall be binding upon the local school board and the parent unless such decision is appealed, pursuant to Article 10.16.

Either party aggrieved by the decision of the impartial hearing officer may appeal that decision to the State Superintendent of Education. The request for appeal shall be submitted in writing to the Illinois Office of Education, Legal Department, and shall include a statement of the specific reasons upon which the appeal is predicated. It shall be postmarked within fifteen (15)

CHAPTER I-Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

EDUCATION OF HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

IMPLEMENTATION OF PART B OF THE EDUCATION OF HANDICAPPED CHILDREN ACT

AGENCY: U.S. Office of Education, HEW.

ACTION: Final regulation.

SUMMARY: These regulations implement amendments to Part B of the Education of the Handicapped Act as required by the Education for All Handicapped Children Act of 1975. By: (1) extending the existing regulations governing assistance to States for education of handicapped children, (2) adding a new part on incentive grants programs for handicapped children aged three through five, and (3) making certain conforming amendments to the general provisions for State-administered programs.

These regulations govern the provision of formula grants funds to State and local educational agencies to assist them in the education of handicapped children. The regulations include provisions which are designed: (1) to assure that all handicapped children have available to them a free appropriate public education; (2) to ensure that the rights of handicapped children and their parents are protected; (3) to assist States and localities to provide for the education of handicapped children; and (4) to assess and assure the effectiveness of efforts to educate such children.

These regulations also include the final rules for counting and reporting handicapped children. (The child count rules were published in proposed form on September 8, 1976, and were incorporated into the December 30 proposed regulations for the convenience of the reader.)

Rulemaking History—Public Participation

Because of the potential impact that Pub. L. 94-143 will have on the education of handicapped children throughout the Nation, and on the agencies that serve them, the Office of Education requested the need for intensive public participation in the development of regulations, and took steps to insure maximum public involvement throughout the entire rulemaking process. A description of these steps is included in the following paragraphs.

Before the proposed rules were drafted, the Office of Education carried out an extensive effort to obtain comments and suggestions for developing regulations from interested persons throughout the Nation. This involved participating in approximately 30 meetings about the law conducted on both a geographic and special interest basis. Approximately 2,200 people participated in these meetings and several hundred comments were received.

In June 1976, the Office of Education convened a national writing group of approximately 170 people to develop concept papers for use in writing the regulations. Approximately 2,300 people participated in these meetings and several hundred comments were received.

In December 29, 1976, the proposed rules were published in the Federal Register. Written comments and recommendations on the proposed rules were invited for a thirty-day comment period ending March 1, 1977. Public hearings were held in Washington, San Antonio, East St. Louis, St. Louis, and Atlanta. Over 1,600 written comments were received during that period, all of which were reviewed and considered by the Office of Education in preparing these final regulations.

In addition to the public comment activities, the Office of Education continued with its public participation efforts, including:

(1) Participating in 10 regional meetings to assist in the education of handicapped children aged three through five. Congress established incentive grants in the recognition that when handicapped children are served at the earlier stages of development—1) benefits are maximized; 2) additional or more severe handicaps may be prevented; and 3) greater long-term cost effectiveness is realized.

Comment: An issue was raised concerning the possible use of incentive grants to children from birth through two years of age.

Response: Section 611 of the Act and the legislative history specify that the use of incentive grant funds is limited to children aged three through five years. However, the use of section 611 of the Act may be used for children from birth through age twenty-one.

Comment: An issue was raised as to whether incentive grant funds may be
RULES AND REGULATIONS

ORGANIZATION OF REGULATIONS

Three parts of Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations are amended by this document:

1. Part 109—State Administered Programs. This includes certain conforming amendments to the regulations under section 468(b)(1)(A) of the General Education Provisions Act.

2. Part 121—Assistance to States for Education of Handicapped Children. This is divided into seven subparts: (A) General, (B) State Annual Program Plans and Local Applications, (C) Services, (D) Fiscal Administration, (E) Procedural Safeguards, (F) State Administration, and (G) Allocation of Funds and Reports.

3. Part 131—In-service Grants. This governs the administration of the in-service grants program for handicapped children aged three through five, authorized under section 915 of the Act.

ANALYSIS OF REGULATIONS

Appendix A of Part 121 includes an analysis of each subpart, which (1) discusses significant comments received and the action taken with respect to those comments, and (2) explains the necessary changes made from the proposed rules published on December 30, 1974.

TYPICAL EXAMPLE

Appendix B of Part 121 includes an index of the major topics in the regulations. It contains appropriate public education, priorities, and individualized education programs, and the specific sections affected by each rule are used.

NOTE—The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has determined that this part constitutes a major proposal requiring preparatory comments under Executive Order 11513 and 11629 and OMB Circular A-107, and certifies that an Economic Impact Analysis has been prepared. However, because the purpose of this regulation involving major costs is not quantitatively identical to the costs of subpart D of the regulations concerning nonatorium against the handicapped under section 606 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, on June 1, 1974, published May 4, 1977, at 67 FR 9871: the Department has determined that this regulation involves no substantial costs not imposed by Part 61 and in the pertinent part of this statement for that regulation note the IRA requirements for this regulation. (See regulations implementing the following requirements: 1: appropriates education to handicapped students; 2: identification and evaluation of handicapped children; and 3: provision of educational services for handicapped children and their parents.)

Date: August 12, 1977.

John E. Blum
Acting U.S. Commissioner of Education.

Eloise C. Chaffee
Acting Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Comment. The Report of the House of Representatives on Pub. L. 94-142 includes the following statement regarding physical education:

"Special education as set forth in the Committee bill includes instruction in physical education, which is provided as a matter of course to all non-handicapped children enrolled in public elementary and secondary schools. The Committee is concerned that although these services are available and required of all children in our school systems, they are often viewed as a luxury for handicapped children.

The Committee expects the Commissioner of Education to take whatever action is necessary to assure that all handicapped children, and as specifically included physical educations within the definition of special education as made clear that the Committee expects such services, specially designed where necessary, be provided as an integral part of the educational program of every handicapped child."

§ 121a.320 Definitions of "first priority children" and "second priority children."

For the purposes of §§ 121a.221-121a.234, the terms: (a) "First priority children" means handicapped children who:

(1) Are in an area for which the State must make available free appropriate public education under § 121a.300; and

(2) Are not receiving any education.

(b) "Second priority children" means handicapped children, within each disability, with the more severe handicaps who are receiving an inadequate education.

20 U.S.C. 1412(3).

Comment. After September 1, 1978, there should be no second priority children, since national measures, as a condition of receiving Part B funds for fiscal year 1979, that all handicapped children will have available a free appropriate public education by that date.

Note. The term "free appropriate public education," as defined in § 121a.4 of Subpart A, means "special education and related services wherein  are provided in conformity with an individualized education program *** ."

Several priority children will continue to be found by the State after September 1, 1978 through on-going efforts to identify, locate, and evaluate all handicapped children.

§ 121a.321 Priorities.

(a) Each State and local educational agency shall use funds provided under Part B of the Act in the following order of priorities:

(1) To provide free appropriate public education to first priority children, including the identification, location, and evaluation of first priority children.

(2) To provide free appropriate public education to second priority children, including the identification, location, and evaluation of second priority children.

(3) To meet the other requirements in this part.

(b) The requirements of paragraph (a) of this section do not apply to funds which the State uses for administration under § 121a.320.

20 U.S.C. 1411(b)(1)(B); (B)(2)(B); (C) (1)(B); (C)(3); (A)(u).

(c) State and local educational agencies may not use funds under Part B of the Act for preschool training.

Comment. Note that a State educational agency as well as local educational agencies must use Part B funds except for the provision of services for the preservice training. A State may have to set aside a portion of its Part B allotment to be able to serve heavily-identified first priority children.

After September 1, 1978, Part B funds may be used:

(1) To continue supporting child identification, location, and evaluation activities;

(2) To provide free appropriate public education to newly identified first priority children;

(3) To meet the full educational opportunities goal required under sections 121a.304, including employing additional personnel and providing in-service training, in order to improve the level, intensity and quality of services provided to individual handicapped children; and

(4) To meet the other requirements of Part B.

(a) In school year 1977-1978, if a major component of a first priority child's proposed educational services is not available (for example, there is no qualified teacher), the public agency responsible for the child's education shall:

(1) Provide an interim program of services for the child; and

(2) Develop an individualized education program for full implementation no later than September 1, 1978.

(b) A local educational agency may use Part B funds for training or other support services in school year 1977-1978 only if all of its first priority children have been available to them at least an interim program of services.

(c) A State educational agency may use Part B funds for training or other support services in school year 1977-1978 only if all first priority children in the State have available to them at least an interim program of services.

Comment. This provision is intended to make it clear that a State or local educational agency may not delay placing a previously unobserved first priority child until it has, for example, implemented an in-service training program. The child must be placed. After the child is in an intermediate program, the State or local educational agency may use Part B funds for training or other support services needed to provide that child with a free appropriate public education.

§ 121a.333 Services to other children.

If a State or local educational agency is providing free appropriate public education to all of its first priority children, that State or agency may use funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, if it provides assurance satisfactory to the State educational agency in its application (or an amendment to its application) that—
(a) It has, as a part of its requirements for funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the assurance described in paragraph (a) in section 112.336 of the Regulations for such children; and
(b) Out of any funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the amount of the Federal share that is used for such children is less than the Federal share that is used for children eligible for special education services under Part B of the Act for first priority children.
§112.336 Application of local schemes.
(a) The State educational agency must use funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, if it is satisfied that the assurance satisfactory to the State educational agency in its application (or an amendment to its application) that—
(b) It has, as a part of its requirements for funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the assurance described in paragraph (a) in section 112.336 of the Regulations for such children; and
(b) Out of any funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the amount of the Federal share that is used for such children is less than the Federal share that is used for children eligible for special education services under Part B of the Act for first priority children.
§112.334 Application of local scheme.
(a) The State educational agency may use funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, if it provides assurance satisfactory to the State educational agency in its application (or an amendment to its application) that—
(b) It has, as a part of its requirements for funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the assurance described in paragraph (a) in section 112.336 of the Regulations for such children; and
(b) Out of any funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the amount of the Federal share that is used for such children is less than the Federal share that is used for children eligible for special education services under Part B of the Act for first priority children.
§112.334 Application of local scheme.
(a) The State educational agency may use funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, if it provides assurance satisfactory to the State educational agency in its application (or an amendment to its application) that—
(b) It has, as a part of its requirements for funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the assurance described in paragraph (a) in section 112.336 of the Regulations for such children; and
(b) Out of any funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the amount of the Federal share that is used for such children is less than the Federal share that is used for children eligible for special education services under Part B of the Act for first priority children.
§112.334 Application of local scheme.
(a) The State educational agency may use funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, if it provides assurance satisfactory to the State educational agency in its application (or an amendment to its application) that—
(b) It has, as a part of its requirements for funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the assurance described in paragraph (a) in section 112.336 of the Regulations for such children; and
(b) Out of any funds provided under Part B of the Act for second priority children, the amount of the Federal share that is used for such children is less than the Federal share that is used for children eligible for special education services under Part B of the Act for first priority children.

The agency shall insure that the individualized education program constitutes a guarantee by the public agency and the teacher that a child will progress in the special education service.

121A.346 Use of local educational agency services.

§ 121.261 Nature and location of services.

The State educational agency may provide special education and related services under § 121.304(b)(1) in the manner and at the location it considers appropriate, however, in the manner in which the education and services are provided must be consistent with the requirements of this part including the least restrictive environment provisions in 34 CFR 300.304-300.308 of Subpart B.

(30 U.S.C. 1414(d)(1)(B), (c)(1)(B).)

Comment. The requirement in § 121.277 would be somewhat meaningless if the amount of State funds expended for each major program area (e.g., the comprehensive system of personal development) is to be equal to the expenditure of Federal funds.

(c) For the purposes of this part:

(1) “Independent educational evaluation” means an evaluation conducted by a qualified examiner who is not employed by the public agency responsible for the education of the child in question.

(2) “Public agency” means the public agency in part E, unless the public agency obtains the services of an independent educational evaluator at public expense.

2. Paragraph (c) means that where State law requires consent before evaluation or before special education and related services are initially provided, and the parent refuses (or otherwise withholds) consent, State procedures, such as obtaining a stay order authorizing the public agency to conduct the evaluation or provide the education and related services, must be followed.

If, however, there is no legal requirement for consent outside of these regulations, the public agency may use the due process provisions in this section to obtain a decision to allow the evaluation or services without parental consent. The agency may notify the parent of its action, and the parent has appeal rights as well as rights at the hearing itself.

§ 121a.506 Impartial due process hearing.

(2) The parent or the agency initiates a hearing under this section.

Comment. "Many States have pointed to the attendance of counsel as an important step prior to conducting a formal due process hearing. Although the process of mediation is not required by the statute or these regulations, an agency may wish to encourage mediation in disputes concerning the identification, evaluation, and educational placement of children who are suspected of being handicapped children, and the provision of a free appropriate public education to those children. Mediations have been conducted by members of State educational agencies or local educational agency personnel who were not previously involved in the particular case. In many cases, mediation leads to resolution of differences between parents and agencies without the development of adversarial relationships and with minimal emotional stress. However, mediation may not be used to delay or deny a parent's right to a hearing."

Comment: Section 121a.351 includes some of the main factors which must be considered in determining the extent to which a handicapped child should be educated with children who are not handicapped. The overriding goal in this section is that placement decisions must be made so that individuals are included in those instances when the placement is consistent with the best interests of the child. The term "individuals" may refer to more than one child in a particular school or agency. This section reinforces the principle that treatment of handicapped children and nonhandicapped children should not be separate or disproportional.

Priorities (§ 116A.301)

Comment: Many commenters were concerned that first priority education cases be used for inspections training for personnel who can serve these students, and asked that such inspections training sessions may be an essential component toward achieving the first priority.

Response: The proposed rules have been revised to expand in order to address the above concerns. A new section was added to make it clear that an agency may use Part 5 funds for inspections training concurrently with placing a first priority child in school, in an apparent error. If a component of the child's program is missing, however, the presence of inspections training may not be used as a pre-condition for service to the child.

(1) The Congress has a responsibility * * * to see that all persons are assured equal opportunity. For handicapped children, this means at the very least, that they are not required to be required to participate in the regular PE program. A person with a parent-agency agreement is in the development of a program in the school and to which the parent and agency personnel are represented.

Other changes: Proposed sections 116A.304 (factual use of property) has been deleted.

PART II of the rule on false appropriate public education, the law requires each state and local educational agency to establish a policy to prevent the use of educational facilities for the inspection of children, and second to report to handicapped children's programs to the least restrictive environment, and, third, for the state administration funds, and each such facility to be used in the least restrictive environment under part B "to the extent feasible." The regulations which implement these priority requirements are included in sections 116A.220-116A.234.

very costly and could essentially defeat the purpose of insuring active, open parent involvement.

While it is necessary to insure that all direct services personnel are aware of and involved in the implementation of the child's IEP, this does not mean that they should attend the IEP meetings. The mechanics for improving the involvement of all IEP implementers is left to the discretion of each agency (e.g., the child's teacher, or private or paraprofessional whose responsibility. However, this is a basic IEP meeting procedure which can be handled outside of the context of the IEP meeting.

The main document does not require all IEP meetings to be attended by all implementers. In fact, the definition of IEP in section 300.19 of IDEA outlines the potential roles of special education supervisor or supervisor, teacher, parent, and child, where appropriate. Moreover, it was the intent of Congress that IEP meetings generally occur outside of the school setting. Therefore, this following statement by Senator Kennedy in the Senate Appropriations Committee Report: In answer to my colleagues, it was the intent and I believe, I can speak for the subcommittee and the committee in this matter, that these meetings """""""were small meetings that are for the most part, small meetings that are to be attended by those people who have, normally no interest or interest in a particular child, i.e., the provider or parents, and in some cases the parents of the child. The meeting is not to be attended by those teachers involved even more than one teacher would be involved. In addition, there should be representatives of the local educational agency who is qualified to provide, or supervise, the child's educational program. This is not to say that the teacher will not be involved. The teacher will not be involved only because the teacher is the one who will be implementing the IEP in the classroom.

Comments: Some commenters recommended that teachers be involved in implementing the IEP. As a result, the Office of Education has added a new section, which states, in effect, that each small public agency must provide the necessary personnel, including teachers, to implement the IEP.

Comments: Some commenters recommended that the regulations deal with the fact that the small public agency must provide the necessary personnel, including teachers, to implement the IEP.

Revisions: Some revisions have been added to the section 300.19, which require that all special education implementers, in addition to the teacher, must attend the IEP meetings.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

DEPARTMENT OF THE STATE EDUCATIONAL AGENCY

The direct services provisions of this subpart include sections on (1) use of local educational agency (LEA) funds; (2) nature and location of personnel; (3) use of the State's SRA's entitlement; and (4) a State regulations section. The section on the use of LEA allocations (section 111.280) has been restyled to combine the proposed paragraphs (a) and (b) into one paragraph. This paragraph sets out the conditions under which an LEA may use its SRA entitlement. A new paragraph (e) has been added, which requires the state to ensure that the access cost requirement does not apply to State educational agencies.

Section 111.280 (Nature and location of personnel) has been amended to correct an error made in the proposed rule. The proposed regulation stated that the issue restrictive environment (LESE) provisions do not apply when the LEA provides direct services. The amended rule now states that the manner in which the education and services are provided, whether by direct service or by LEA-provided services, may be in accord with the requirements of this part, including the LESE provisions. The regulation on "State matching" was not substantially changed. However, a comment was added after this section to make it clear that the requirements would be suspended only when the LEA is providing only services to students who have an IEP that is implemented by the LEA.
only in institutions of higher education with State approved programs.

On the other hand, it may be suggested that the net effect of the proposed rules will be to increase the number of persons who are able to participate in special education programs. The regulations set forth the requirements for participation in special education programs, including the processes for admission and the responsibilities of the educational agencies. The regulations also provide for the use of public school facilities by private education agencies. The regulations are designed to ensure that all children with disabilities are provided with appropriate educational opportunities. The regulations also require that the State maintain a system of review and accountability to ensure that the regulations are being implemented effectively. The regulations are intended to provide a framework for the provision of special education services to all children with disabilities in the State.

The regulations also include provisions for the development of a system of accountability and assessment. The regulations require that the State maintain a system of evaluation and assessment of the effectiveness of the special education programs. The regulations also require that the State develop a system of accountability and assessment that ensures that the special education programs are meeting the needs of the children.

The regulations also include provisions for the use of public school facilities. The regulations allow for the use of public school facilities by private education agencies, provided that the facilities are used for educational purposes and that the use is consistent with the needs of the children. The regulations also require that the State maintain a system of review and accountability to ensure that the use of public school facilities is being implemented effectively.

Due Process Procedures for Parents and Children

DEFINITIONS (§116A.440)

Comment: Commentators recommended that the phrase "unless it is clear and not feasible to do so" be deleted from the definition of consent and that additional language be added to require that the consent be provided in writing whenever consent is required.

Response: The phrase has been deleted. The deletion of the phrase will help to secure the informed consent in every case. The definition of consent has been expanded to make it clear that consent must be given in writing. A separate section (§116A.404) has been added to provide for procedures for obtaining consent or for initial placement.

Comment: Several commentators requested changes in the definition of "evaluation" to clarify the content and extent of evaluation which must be conducted by qualified personnel, that the findings must be reduced to written and that they must rate into account the child's needs as well as abilities.

Response: No change has been made. The clarification regarding qualified personnel is included. The changes to the definition of evaluation which are necessary for the requirements of this section have been made in another section of this chapter.

GENERAL RESPONSIBILITY OF PUBLIC AGENCIES (§116A.500)

Comment: Commentators requested changes in the definition of "evaluation" to clarify the content and extent of evaluation which must be conducted by qualified personnel, that the findings must be reduced to written and that they must rate into account the child's needs as well as abilities.

Response: No change has been made. The clarification regarding qualified personnel is included. The changes to the definition of evaluation which are necessary for the requirements of this section have been made in another section of this chapter.

DEPARTMENTAL PERSONNEL MANUALS (§116A.600)

Comment: A commentator asked that the requirement that the regulations specify the public agency must pay for the hearing be deleted.

Response: The changes requested by the commentator have not been made. It should be noted that the statute requires that the public agency must pay for the hearing, and the agency must bear the cost of the hearing, except for the hearing of parents' representatives and witnesses. However, section 116A.404(c) has been amended to allow agencies to provide parents with information about free or low-cost legal and other relevant services that are available to them.

DEPARTMENTAL PERSONNEL OFFICERS (§116A.700)

Comment: Commentators sought to have three-person panels, including parents, serve as hearing officials. Some sought a three-person panel, and others sought not to allow school board officials to serve as hearing officials. Com-
RULES AND REGULATIONS

Comment: A number of commentators suggested that the regulations provide more detail about the requirements than is necessary. For example, requiring training and a report to be submitted to the Board of Education would be more detailed than necessary. (Proposed section 216.14-c (1))

Response: No comment has been made. The Office of Education believes that this section is necessary for the implementation and enforcement of the regulations.

Comment: A number of commentators commented on the interpretation of the term "uninformed" in section 216.14-c (1) (c), which requires that the regulations be presented to the DOE by September 30, 2017.

Response: No comment has been made. The Office of Education believes that this section is necessary for the implementation and enforcement of the regulations.

of an individualized education program in the placement procedures. The following additional comments were made regarding evaluation procedures:

Comment: Several comments raised that the regulations should require state and local educational agencies to develop procedures for the evaluation of interventions. This would make it possible to determine the adequacy of the evaluations and to insure uniformity in these procedures.

Response: A paragraph was added to section 300.402 (Appraisal) which requires the state educational agency to insure that each public agency establishes and implements evaluation—placement procedures.

Comment: Several comments stated that information should be set for implementing the evaluation process (e.g., for referral to educational and placement procedures.)

Response: No change has been made.

The Office of Education has clarified to impose very few absolute timeliness in the regulations for this section, because of the political administrative and legal problems they can cause. Imposing timeliness can seriously delay the provision of services to these students. The time periods are provided as guidelines for the implementing procedures.

A child should be evaluated as soon as possible. Failure to do so will result in the removal of the child from the home or local educational agency compliance with sections 315.110 and 315.120 (Identification and Placement of all handicapped children).

Several other sections requested clarifications regarding whether a reevaluation must be conducted, for example, by section 315.400. This section has been clarified to states that if the parents and agency agree that the child should be transferred from a special education program to a full time regular class placement, then the reevaluation is not required.

Response: This section has been changed in the final rule. However, a change in a child’s placement (including a child who is placed in a regular class) must be made within a time limit to review the child’s individualized education program in accordance with the requirements under sections 315.120 and 315.120 (Identification and Placement of all handicapped children). A new paragraph was added to section 315.400 which states that the state is required to meet this requirement and that all public agencies establish and implement procedures in accordance with the requirements of this section. In addition, a new section, entitled “Reevaluation settings” was added. This section is taken from a new requirement in the section 304 regulations (46 CFR Part 64, 46-236).

Comment: A number of commenters requested that provisions be made for special support in the regular classroom in order to accommodate handicapped children (e.g., individual education plans, peer rate and assigning aside to the room).

Response: No change was made, since the statute already authorizes the use of supplementary aids and services as a means of enabling a handicapped child to be educated with nonhandicapped children.

Comment: Many commenters responded to this requirement. Some felt that the term “accommodations” should be used (e.g., “range of programs” and “variety of services”). A large number of state agencies felt that the term “complementary” carried negative connotations (e.g., accommodations were made that the concept underlies the ideas of Pub. L. 94-142, that it implies best-to-worst, etc.). Other commenters felt that it discriminated against residential or private schools, and recommended that the use be made to construct the term.

Response: No change has been made in this section. The term “complementary” as with other language and terminology used in the ESEA, is commonly used by agencies, advocates, and parents. The purpose of a complementary program is to be used to accommodate to differences between handicapped children in terms of the degree of special assistance they will need to receive a free appropriate public education. This matter was dealt with in the Report of the House of Representatives on H.R. 7247, (H.R. Rep. 99-486, P. 9): The Committee understands the importance of providing educational services to each handicapped child according to his individual needs. These needs may entail instruction to be given in varying surroundings, i.e., hospital, home, school or institution. The Committee also recognizes that it is not possible and where more beneficial to the child, special educational services be provided in a school setting. An optimal situation, of course, would be one in which the child is placed in a regular classroom. The Committee recognizes that this is not always the most beneficial setting of instruction for all handicapped children. What is clear is that, because of the nature or severity of a child’s handicap, the child must be evaluated in the setting in which he is most beneficial. It is appropriate to appropriate to implement a school setting. However, the LEA program is also designed as a right protection program (46 CFR Part 63, 63.400). The evaluation of a child in a regular education setting may be the child is handicapped and not because special education is needed in that type of setting.

Response: No change was made to the existing requirement for a separate or separate wing in a regular school building.

Comment: Many commenters were concerned that there may be an overemphasis on the placement of handicapped children with the needs of regular education. This was proven by the non-representation among the above concerns. With respect to these concerns, the overreaching rule is that each child’s placement must be determined individually and be based on his or her individualized educational program.

With respect to concerns about the harmful effect of placing handicapped children in regular classes, the analysis of the section 304 regulations indicates: “It must be stressed that, where a handicapped child is so disruptive in a regular classroom that the education of other students is significantly impaired, the needs of the handicapped child cannot be met in that environment. Therefore regular placement would appear to be inappropriate in the case of the child described in the example. (46 CFR Part 64—Appendix, paragraph 26) On the contrary a child under the above situation can be a new provision added which requires states and local educational agencies to utilize flexible case-based early childhood development programs for 3-6 year old handicapped children in order to construct the time frame in insurance procedures. The term “complementary” is listed by maximum allowable placement time. (26)

Response: No change was made in this section. The comments which are considered are not at one with the intent of this requirement.

CONTRIBUTIBILITY OF INFORMATION

Response: Commenters asked that the detailed contents of the notice requirements be deleted as excessive.

Response: No change has been made. The Office of Education believes the provisions require that States provide necessary information to inform parents the type of information concerned about the handicapped children to meet the requirements of this part.

Comment: Several sections have been changed in the final rule. However, a change in a child’s placement (including a child who is placed in a regular class) must be made within a time limit to review the child’s individualized education program in accordance with the requirements under sections 315.120 and 315.20 (Identification and Placement of all handicapped children).

Response: This section has been changed in the final rule. However, a change in a child’s placement (including a child who is placed in a regular class) must be made within a time limit to review the child’s individualized education program in accordance with the requirements under sections 315.120 and 315.20 (Identification and Placement of all handicapped children).

Response: The new section 315.400 states that if the parents and agency agree that the child should be transferred from a special education program to a full time regular class placement, then the reevaluation is not required.
RULES AND REGULATIONS

(21-C) Agencies may of course adopt policies of making copies available free of charge and are encouraged to do so.

FINANCIAL PROCEDURES (1:118,975)

Comment: A commenter requested clarification of what constitutes a hearing.

Response: The section states that the procedures under 190.22 (the hearing procedures in the regulations for the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act) are to be used. Section 190.25(1) states the hearing may be conducted by any party, including an official of the educational agency or institution, who does not have a direct interest in the outcome of the hearing.

CONCLUSIONS (1:118,975)

Comment: Commenters requested that "advanced students," persons acting as proxies, and others be given access to records without consent.

Response: No change has been made. The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act specifically lists parties and conditions under which records may be released without parental consent.

INFORMATION AND NOTICES (1:118,975)

Comment: A number of commenters were concerned about the student information requirements. The principle concern was that detailed records be made available to various individuals to prove the need for further services from other agencies. One respondent requested that "handicapped children" be notified of the existence of the records at the time of graduation and informed that they would be destroyed only upon request of the parent or child. Another commenter suggested that record maintenance be discontinued when the parent or guardian is known to have destroyed the opportunity to have them destroyed.

Response: The requirement has been revised to permit the parents or guardians to request that the information be destroyed and to require the destruction of the records only upon written request of the parent or guardian. The notice would normally be given at the time of graduation, or at such time as the agency determines is necessary. The purpose of the destruction option is to ensure that nonessential records are not maintained and that the data, which may possibly be stigmatizing, may be removed. The destruction of the records is not to be made in such a way that the records shall be destroyed after they are no longer needed for educational purposes. Destruction of nonessential records is the best protection against improper or unauthorized disclosure. However, the handicapped child's file or his or her parents may need certain records for other purposes (such as proof of eligibility for benefits).

Comment: Commenters asked that notice be given to a child who has reached the age of majority.

Response: No change has been made. Section 190.25(1) requires the State educational agency to have policies and procedures regarding children's privacy. These education records are maintained by an agency covered under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, these rights must include transfer of the rights of parents to the child when he or she reaches 18 or the post-secondary education level.

Other Changes: The regulations have been revised to make it clear that the records covered under this Act are the same as the type of records covered under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act. Consistency in coverage is necessary to avoid undue administrative burdens on public agencies covered by both laws.

OCCUPATIONAL EDUCATION PROCEDURES

General. The requirements in these sections largely restated the statute. Perhaps for this reason, few comments were received on the Office of Education procedures. Waivers or exemptions may be requested by a parent or student, and parents or students are responsible for providing written agreements or stipulations with partly or fully funded programs.

Comments: A commenter requested that the special study to determine if a waiver of the requirement should be granted include a review of whether grievance procedures are operating.

Response: Commenters disagreed on the need for this study.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR ADMINISTRATION (1:118,975)

Comment: A commenter asked for definitions of "substantial compliance" and "fail to comply." Commenters also urge that the Office of Education, the Office for Civil Rights, and the Department of Education officials apply the same criteria.

Response: No change has been made. The Office of Education has determined these terms will have to be defined on a case-by-case basis.

The Office of Education and the Office for Civil Rights will coordinate and cooperate in enforcing requirements under this Part and Part 96 (the regulations for sections 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973) where identical regulations are involved. The Office of Education will make every effort to ensure that auditing officials understand and apply any criteria used by program officials.

STATE FAMILY EDUCATION RIGHTS ADVISORY PANEL

Responsibility for State Administration

This subpart has been amended with requirements set out under the major headings, State Educational Agency Responsibilities, Use of Funds, and State Advisory Panel.

State Educational Agency Responsibilities

Proposals on State educational agency responsibilities have been revised (and restated from proposed sections 131A.26) in response to comments to better summarize general administrative and supervisory responsibilities. Section 131A.26(8) and other sections of the Act. A section on compliance procedures, which was included in previous regulations for purposes of uniformity, has been modified and is now included in the proposed regulations has been added.

Comment: Commenters requested addition of a new section on State educational agency responsibilities for monitoring evaluation, and enforcement activities to insure compliance throughout the State with the requirements of this part. The comments made specific suggestions for implementing such a section, including collection of data, conduct of the audit, audit of fund utilization, preparation of written individualized education programs with programs actually prepared on parents and parent groups, public hearings. Development of detailed criteria for evaluating program quality and effectiveness, and detailed procedures for enforcing requirements against noncomplying agencies.

Response: A new section has been added to require each State educational agency to develop procedures and specific timelines for monitoring and evaluating public agencies involved in the education of handicapped children. These are minimal requirements. Adoption of the other suggestions made by the commenters is encouraged but not required.

ALLOWABLE COSTS (1:118,975)

Comment: A number of commenters requested addition of the law that administrative funds be raised and that provisions be added to allow local educational agencies to use funds for administrative costs.

Response: No change has been made on the State limit as it is a statutory limitation.

Comment: Commenters requested that the regulations require each State educational agency to use its funds for specific purposes. One recommendation was that the amount of the administrative funds be used to hire persons in local communities to assist and inform parents and other persons about the availability of the State's programs for handicapped children.

Response: No change has been made. The Office of Education does not believe it is appropriate to discuss to States laws to use their limited administrative funds.

STATE ADVISORY PANEL

Responsibility for State Administration

Comment: One commenter recommended that local panels be required.

Response: No change has been made. The statute only requires a State advisory panel. A State may, of course, decide to establish local panels.

MEASUREMENT (1:118,975)

Comment: A substantial number of commenters recommended addition of the law that representatives be included on the panel, including professional groups, legal advocacy groups, and representatives of State and local agencies. Some commenters indicated that handicapped individuals or their parents make up specific percentages of the panel.

Response: A provision has been added to make it clear that a State may exceed the statutory panel to include additional persons in the process, such as representatives of other groups. The Federal Office of Education agrees; however, it does not believe it is appropriate to prescribe specific percentages as the States should have some discretion to determine the proper size of representatives. A comment has been added to indicate that the State may consider in determining balanced membership of the panel.

ADVISORY PANELS AND ADVISORY PANEL PROCEDURES (1:118,975)

Comment: Commenters recommended that the regulations indicate that the panel must comment publicly on the State annual program plans. The annual program plan is an extremely important document and the inclusion in the regulations that the panel must be involved in reviewing it. The other recommendations made by the commenters have not been adopted because they do not serve the Federal government interest.

Response: A change has been made to require the panel to comment on the annual program plan. The annual program plan is an extremely important document and the addition may not be required by these regulations at this time.

FEDERAL REGISTER, VOL. 42, NO. 182—TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1977

RULES AND REGULATIONS

Comment: Commenters requested that the regulations provide that parents be reimbursed for reasonable and necessary expenses for attending meetings and performing duties.

Response: This change has been made. It is reasonable to require reimbursement for expenses so that persons will be able to participate without financial hardship.

SUBPART O—ASSISTANCE TO FORMER REPORTERS

This major section of Subpart O is entirely statutory; therefore, there are no comments or modifications which it is required.

REPORTS—ANNUAL REPORT OF CLAIMS

The following comments were received regarding the annual report by the States of the number of children receiving special education and related services. The comments are in the basic for each State's allocation of funds under Part R and serve as a mechanism for the Commissioner to meet some of the reporting requirements to Congress under section 611 of the Act. Some commenters recommended changes be made to the form and manner of the annual report. The Act has not been amended except where further explanation seemed to be needed.

AMOUNT OF INFORMATION INCLUDED IN THE REPORT

Comment: Commenters varied in their views on what information should be included in the report. It was suggested that additional information could be collected for compliance purposes. Objectives were made to the recommendation regarding reporting children by disability category, and for reporting the 6-2 year old population. On the other hand, some commenters recommended that additional categories be added to the report, particularly for deaf-blind children and for multihandicapped children.

Harper: Two categories of handicapped children have been added to the report—severely and profoundly deaf-blind and multihandicapped children. These terms are defined in section 1116 of Subpart A. No other changes have been made on the amount of information to be included in the report.

The Federal categories should help to ensure that no handicapped child is counted more than once, and that the information collected will not have to decide in which of two or more disabilities a child is multihandicapped child. The changes conform to existing reporting requirements used by the States.

The annual report of services is not considered a valid measure for determining each State's allocation and in some States. In the meeting his reporting requirements to the Congress under section 611. Under section 611 of the Act, allocations are based on the number of handicapped children and the Services non-special education related services. Compliance with requirements such as "special education services" will be required through other mechanisms, including the State's annual program plan, the local educational agency's application, and monitoring by the State educational agency and the Office of Education.

As expected in the preamble to the proposed rules published in the Federal Register, on September 2, 1976, the report requirements were added to the Commissioner to carry out the Act. (See 41 FR 27784). One of the comments raised was whether the Commissioner is concerned about the possible future adverse effect of "related services". The Act requires that the Commissioner report a substantial amount of information to Congress by disability category. For this reason, and for the other reasons stated in the September 2, 1976, Federal Register, there appears to be no workable alternative to requiring the categories in the table and in the Act. The various disability categories, as well as any requirements as set out in the Commissioner's report to the Congress, are statutory.

WHO MAY BE COVERED

Comment: Commenters disagreed as to whether handicapped children should be covered if the $500 education in public school funds from private sources or such as Federal funds (such as children living on military bases). Some thought that only publicly-funded special education should qualify. While others argued that since all children have a right to a free appropriate education (whether or not the person should not matter.)

HIGHER EDUCATION

The proposed regulation in the Federal Register that a $100 education in public school funds from private sources or such as Federal funds (such as children living on military bases). Some thought that only publicly-funded special education should qualify. While others argued that since all children have a right to a free appropriate education (whether or not the person should not matter.)

A State may not count a child whose special education is paid for by the Federal government, unless the child is in one of the age groups 5 to 18 and, there are no State funds available for such handicapped children in that age group.

Children funded by the Federal government would include Indian children whose special education is paid for only by the Federal government, as well as children whose special education is paid for by State and Federal funds. This rule is consistent with the requirement that a free appropriate public education (FAPE) be made available by the State to each handicapped child. Parents are not required to take advantage of FAPE. If they choose not to take advantage of the public school system, through public funds even though is available, the State has not discharged its responsibility. However, by the same token, the child should not be counted by the State for its allocation if the child is not being provided special education at public expense. The State is required to make such services as are needed for Indian children and other children who receive their special education from the Federal government. The rule should serve as an encouragement to States to provide services to all handicapped children, however, since any child proving special education from State or local funds may be excluded.

Comment: Two other provisions in the regulations were objected to by commenters. The first of these provisions that handicapped children "enrolled" in school are counted as being receiving special education. These commenters felt that enrollment did not guarantee service. The second provision raised was that if a child who required special education may be counted, but not a child who receives only "related services." This was viewed as an overly restrictive reading of the Act.

Response: No change has been made in the regulations. While no system is perfect, enrollment is a fair way of ascertaining the number of handicapped children receiving special education on October 1 and February 1. The two dates on which the Act requires the reports of children served. It would not be possible in an annual report to assess the best counts of children in classrooms and other facilities where such services are provided. With respect to children who receive only "related services," this is governed by regula-§ 121a.1 Scope: purpose.

(a) This part applies to special education and related services to handicapped children age three, four, or five.

(b) The Commissioner awards a grant to each State which provides special education and related services to handicapped children aged six, seven, or eight.

(c) The State shall use funds provided under this part to give special education and related services to handicapped children in the age groups named in paragraph (b) of this section.

§ 121a.2 General provisions regulating implementation. Assistance under this part is subject to the requirements in Parts 100, 106b, 100c, and 121 of this chapter, including definitions and fiscal, administrative, program management, and other matters.

§ 121a.3 Eligibility.

A. A State is eligible to receive a grant if:

(a) The Commissioner has approved its annual program plan under Part 121a of this chapter; and

(b) The State provides special education and related services to any handicapped children aged three, four, or five.

§ 121a.4 Application. To receive funds under this part, a State must submit an application to the Commissioner through its State educational agency.

§ 121a.5 Application contents. An application must include the following material:

(a) A description of the State’s goals and objectives for meeting the educational, health, or related services needs of handicapped children age three through five. These goals and objectives must be consistent with the State’s total educational opportunity under § 121a.125 of this chapter.

(b) A description of the objectives to be supported by the grant in sufficient detail.
RULES AND REGULATIONS

detail to determine what will be achieved with the grant.
(c) A description of the activities to be supported by the grant. The activities must be related to the objectives under paragraph (b) of this section and must be described in sufficient detail to determine how the grant will be used.
(d) A description of the impact the proposed activities will have on handicapped children ages three through five. This description must include evidence that the proposed activities are of sufficient size, scope, and quality to warrant the amounts of the expenditure. The application must indicate the number of children to be served and the number of handicapped children who will be benefited directly. If children are to be benefited indirectly, there must be a rationale that demonstrates the benefit.
(e) The number of local educational agencies or intermediate educational units, and the number and names of other agencies which will provide contractual services under the grant, the activities they will carry out, and the reasons for selecting these agencies.
(f) The dollar amounts that will be spent for each major activity described.
(g) A description of the procedures the State will use to evaluate the grants to which the activities meet the objectives described under paragraph (b) of this section.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(b)).

§ 121m.6 Assessments of grants.

(a) The amount of a grant is $200 multiplied by the average number of children ages three through five counted during the current school year under §§ 121a.760-121a.764 of this chapter.
(b) If appropriated funds are less than enough to pay in full the grants under this part, the amount of each grant is ratably reduced.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(a), (d)).

§ 121m.7 Allowable expenditures.

(a) The State educational agency may use funds under this part to give special education and related services to handicapped children ages three through five who are not counted under §§ 121a.760-121a.764 of this chapter if the State educational agency ensures that these children have all of the rights afforded under part 121a of this chapter.
(b) The State educational agency may use up to five percent of its grant for the costs of administering the funds provided under this part.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(c)).

Comment. In carrying out the provisions of this part, some activities are considered particularly appropriate for the use of these funds: (1) Providing parents with skill development information; (2) assuring parents in the understanding of the special needs of their handicapped child; (3) providing parents counseling and parent training, where appropriate, to enable parents to work more effectively with their children; (4) providing essential diagnostic and evaluation services; (5) providing rehabilitation services to the delivery of services; (6) providing speech therapy, occupational therapy, or physical therapy.

§ 121m.8 Exemptions.

(a) If local or State funds are available to pay for the education of non-handicapped children of the same age as the handicapped children served with funds under this part, funds equal to that amount must also be made available for these handicapped children.
(b) If no local or State funds are available for non-handicapped children of the same age, funds under this part may be used to pay for all of the costs directly attributable to the education of the handicapped children.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(d)).

§ 121m.9 Administration.

(a) The State educational agency shall administer the funds provided under this part.
(b) The State educational agency may use the funds itself, or may contract with local educational agencies, intermediate educational units, or other agencies.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(a)).

§ 121m.10 Annual evaluation report.

(a) Within 90 days after the end of the grant period, the State educational agency shall submit a report to the Commissioner on the activities carried out under this part during that period.
(b) The report must contain: (1) The results of the evaluation under § 121m.5(g), and (2) In brief narrative form, the impact that these funds have had on the State's educational services to handicapped children ages three, four, and five.
(20 U.S.C. 1418(e)).

A MODEL SCHOOL DISCIPLINE CODE

A joint committee comprised of representatives from the American Association of University Professors, U.S. National Student Association, Association of American Colleges, National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, and National Association of Women Deans and Counselors have drafted a Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students. This statement prescribes the following standards of providing students with procedural due process.

PROCEDURAL STANDARDS IN DISCIPLINARY PROCEEDINGS

The administration of discipline should guarantee procedural fairness to an accused student. Practices in disciplinary cases may vary in formality with the gravity of the offense and the sanctions which may be applied. They should also take into account the presence or absence of an honor code, and the degree to which the institutional officials have direct acquaintance with student life in general and with the involved student and the circumstances of the case in particular. The jurisdictions of faculty or student judicial bodies, the disciplinary procedures, including the student's right to appeal a decision, should be clearly formulated and communicated in advance. Minor penalties may be assessed informally under prescribed procedures.

In all situations, procedural fair play requires that the student be informed of the nature of the charges against him, that he be given a fair opportunity to refute them, that the institution not be arbitrary in its actions, and that there be provision for appeal of a decision. The following are recommended as proper safeguards in such proceedings when there are no honor codes offering comparable guarantees.

A. Standards of Conduct Expected of Students

The institution has an obligation to clarify those standards of behavior which it considers essential to its educational mission and its community life. These general behavioral expectations and the resultant specific regulations should represent a reasonable regulation of student conduct, but the student should be as free as possible from imposed limitations that have no direct relevance to his education. Offenses should be as clearly defined as possible and interpreted in a manner consistent with the aforementioned principles of relevancy and reasonableness. Disciplinary proceedings should be instituted only for violations of standards of conduct formulated with significant student participation and published in advance through such means as a student handbook or a generally available body of institutional regulations.

B. Investigation of Student Conduct

1. Except under extreme emergency circumstances, premises occupied by students and the personal possessions of students should not be searched unless appropriate authorization has been obtained. For premises such as residence halls controlled by the institution, an appropriate and responsible authority should be designated to whom application should be made before a search is conducted. The application should specify the reasons for the search and the objects or information sought. The student should be present, if possible, during the search. For premises not controlled by the institution, the ordinary requirements for lawful search should be followed.

2. Students detected or arrested in the course of serious violations of institutional regulations, or infractions of ordinary law, should be informed of their rights. No form of harassment should be used by institutional representatives to coerce admissions of guilt or information about conduct of other suspected persons.

C. Status of Student Pending Final Action

Pending action on the charges, the status of a student should not be altered, or his right to be present on the campus and to attend classes suspended, except for reasons relating to his physical or emotional safety and well-being, or for reasons relating to the safety and well-being of students, faculty, or university property.

D. Hearing Committee Procedures

When the misconduct may result in serious penalties and if the student questions the fairness of disciplinary action taken against him, he should be granted, on request, the privilege of a hearing before a regularly constituted hearing committee. The following suggested hearing committee procedures satisfy the requirements of procedural due process in situations requiring a high degree of formality.
1. The hearing committee should include faculty members or students, or, if regularly included or requested by the accused, both faculty and student members. No member of the hearing committee who is otherwise interested in the particular case should sit in judgment during the proceeding.

2. The student should be informed, in writing, of the reasons for the proposed disciplinary action with sufficient particularity, and in sufficient time, to insure opportunity to prepare for the hearing.

3. The student appearing before the hearing committee should have the right to be assisted in his defense by an adviser of his choice.

4. The burden of proof should rest upon the officials bringing the charge.

5. The student should be given an opportunity to testify and to present evidence and witnesses. He should have an opportunity to hear and question adverse witnesses. In no case should the committee consider statements against him unless he has been advised of their content and of the name of those who made them, and unless he has been given an opportunity to rebut unfavorable inferences which might otherwise be drawn.

6. All matters upon which the decision may be based must be introduced into evidence at the proceeding before the hearing committee. The decision should be based solely upon such matters. Improperly acquired evidence should not be admitted.

7. In the absence of a transcript, there should be both a digest and a verbatim record, such as a tape recording, of the hearing.

8. The decision of the hearing committee should be final, subject only to the student's right of appeal to the president or ultimately to the governing board of the institution.
APPENDIX D

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN the Department of Public Aid Department of Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities, Bureau of the Budget, Department of Children and Family Services, Department of Public Health, Illinois State Board of Education, Department of Rehabilitation Services, and the Governor's Office
AUGUST 26-27, 1980

Governor's Purchased Care Review Board

1. The members of the Governor's Purchased Care Review Board agree to revise Rule 3.21 and Rule 3.31 as attached upon their approval by the Department of Education at the next regularly scheduled meeting of the Board.

2. The Governor's Purchased Care Review Board agrees to apply Rule 3.30(b) to the cost included in Rule 3.21(b) to determine what is a reasonable level for such costs, based on staff analysis and report.

3. The Governor's Purchased Care Review Board agrees to work for alterations of state statutes or rules which will define clearly the differences between educational and non-educational placements and provide for payment for special education rendered in non-educational placements.

State Board of Education

1. The State Board of Education agrees that for 1980-81 no new psychiatric hospitals will be approved and that its rules 8.04.1 will be revised to prohibit new placements in currently approved facilities. This does not imply that an extended care facility, group home or other long-term care facility operated by or in conjunction with a licensed psychiatric hospital could not be approved as a residential facility.

2. The State Board of Education agrees to change any rules necessary so that no non-public facility will be eligible to receive educational placements unless its program is approved by the State Board of Education and its cost are approved by the Governor's Purchased Care Review Board and the facility agrees to charge no more than the Governor's Purchased Care Review Board costs for any educational placement. It is understood that the change in rules will lead to a change in the state approved contract format used for Section 14-7.02 placements.
3. The State Board of Education may make payment in 1980-81 and as necessary thereafter in order to assure the Office of Special Education that all children now placed in Section 14-7.02 facilities which make charges in excess of the approved costs will receive a free appropriate public education until such time as those children can be placed in facilities which do not charge in excess of the approved costs. In order to do so it will be necessary to do a survey of districts and facilities with children in such placements regarding current parental payments and their purposes and develop a review/payment mechanism for assuring that cost as necessary (i.e., proposed new Rule 3.21A,B,C,) are paid for children with signed contracts so placed, and monitor same.

4. The Superintendent agrees to provide written directives to local education agencies (LEA's) regarding the preparation and content of individual education (IEP's). The rules and regulations of the State Board of Education will be modified to reflect the written directives given to LEA's regarding IEP's. The state Board of Education agree to utilize all existing mechanisms to enforce implementation of present rules and regulations relating to the development of IEP's.

5. The state Board of Education will develop a method of review for IEP's which recommend future placement in non-public residential facilities. This review will assess the appropriateness of the IEPs' proposed placement based on the restrictiveness of the environment, the participation of other state agencies that the placement is made solely for educational reasons and other criteria as specified. The rules and regulations of the State Board of Education will be altered to reflect the procedures developed for prior review of IEP's.

6. The State Board of Education will recognize that certain categories of children (ages 3-21) are placed in residential facilities for primarily non-educational reasons. These categories include: 1) children placed for mental health or developmental disabilities purposes in residential mental health facilities pursuant to the Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities Code and the powers and duties of the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities; 2) children involved in juvenile court proceedings (or in family situations likely to lead to such proceedings) which would lead to the involvement of the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS); 3) children who have actions pending in juvenile court seeking adjudication for MINS or delinquency or are already adjudicated; 4) persons against whom criminal charges are pending or who have been convicted as adults; 5) status offenders; and 6) children requiring primarily medical care and treatment. When residential placement for a person who is a member of any of these categories is contemplated, the LEA will invite representatives of the appropriate state agency(s) to attend the multi-disciplinary staffing to provide technical assistance and a preliminary assessment of the eligibility of the student to services of that state agency. The State Board of Education will revise its Rule 9.15 and prepare and implement any other rules and regulations necessary to accomplish this agreement.

Governor's Office and Other State Agencies

1. The Governor's Office agrees to provide direction to the directors of appropriate state agencies to participate fully and completely in the multi-disciplinary staffings as requested by the State Board of Education and LEA's to meet agreement #6 above.

2. The Department of Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities assures that responsible relative liability in present cooperative placements between LEA's and Department of Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities is not paid by the parent.

If administrative or regulatory changes are not sufficient to implement this agreement, statutory changes will be sought.

This agreement is made without prejudice to the contentions of the parties to this agreement and its provisions are binding in the light of approval of the plan and release of the funds by the U.S. Department of Education. However, its provisions are subject to recession(sic) unless all proceedings related to Public Law 94-142 and Section 504 initiated against the Governor's Purchased Care Review Board and the Illinois State Board of Education by the Office of Civil Rights are dismissed.
